You

Signum 1987 Bedford High School

Mudge Way
Bedford, Massachusetts 01730
Volume 4

Decked out in blue and white, Suzy Asbedian and Stephanie Mierzykowski show their spirit for Bedford High.

Blue White And You

"This class is a riot!" say Helen Clark and Kelli Murray of Physics, but do they understand it?

The yearbook is not just an extracurricular activity for Becky O'Donnell and Jennifer Koenig, it's an adventure.

"Penny Lane is in my ears and in my eyes. There, beneath the blue suburban skies..."

We will remember the blue suburban skies of our youth, just as we will recall the painted white numbers on the bleachers, the nasal dissonance of the fire alarms, and the distinctive smell of that special something being cooked downstairs. But perhaps even more important than these recollections are the eternal memories of the achievements of our class. All through our high school years, we, the Class of 1987 have shown ourselves to be an active, spirited, intelligent, and close-knit class. Working together as a unit, we have accomplished such feats as winning the Tournament of Plays as sophomores, taking first place in Hall Decorating as juniors, and having enough successful fundraisers to make us one of the wealthiest classes in BHS history.

In addition to superb group efforts, the Class of 1987 boasts many members with individual talents to be recognized. Whether it was setting a record in school sports, becoming a National Merit Scholar, singing in the Northeast District concert, displaying a drawing at the Museum of Fine Arts, or just being ourselves, each blue ribbon accomplishment adds to the unique character of the Class of 1987.

Blue, White, & You emphasizes the individual qualities that strengthen our class and our school. Modeled after this year's popular cola commercial jingle, "Red, White, and You", our theme captures the colors and spirit of Bedford High that we will carry with us always.

"The spirit of the Class of 1987 is the best I've ever seen."

Do you really think anybody's going to hand out candy to someone your age, Meg Gurley? If she's wearing an outfit like that, they will!

"Well, all right, take our picture if you must, but we WON'T like it," these gentlemen claim before arranging themselves into a perfect pose: Barclay Schieck, Mike Doherty, Tom Bauman, Todd Tyer, Mike Johnson, John Buxton, and Tom Halloran.

Oh that smile! No wonder Juan Gutierrez makes all the girls swoon!

Blue White And Bedford

When you were young, what did you think Bedford Day meant? Food everywhere. And balloons and face painting and the dunking booth and prizes and... too much to tell Mommy about all in one breath. You probably also remember the feeling that everyone but you knew everyone else. After all, how long was Daddy going to talk to that man with the beard - you wanted him to take you in the moonwalk! Well, we've matured since then, but we are still aware of the sense of community that one finds at the annual town gathering.

Beautiful weather, the smell of hot hamburgers, and the sounds of friends and neighbors enjoying themselves attracted many residents to the Bedford Day festivities again this year. Standing or sitting on the curb of Great Road, young and old alike watched the high school marching band, citizen of the month, AFS student, girl scouts, boy scouts and recreation department soccer players parade up the street.

Meanwhile, booths galore were being set up at the Center School parking lot, preparing for a busy day. Young children convinced their parents to buy them fried dough, candy apples, buttons, and balloons. Almost every organization in town, from churches to the Women's Club, had a booth. For a fee of $2.00, anyone could send a summons for a friend to be sentenced for three minutes in the "Junior Jailhouse", provided by the class of 1988. Working together to raise funds for both causes, the senior class and AFS had a mini-golf game, balloons, and candy bars.

After the excitement finally died down late Saturday afternoon, September 20, the booths were taken apart and packed away until next year, when, once again, above the noise of the parade will be heard the cries, "Daddy, when can I go in the moonwalk?"

"It was fun working at the booth," giggles Jennifer Sutton.

Majorette Sheila McCravy twirls on in the Bedford Day parade.

"It's such a wonderful day that you don't want it to end!"

The Bedford High School Band marches proudly at Bedford Day.

Julie Durkin and Suzanne Wright march to the beat of their own drummer.

The Bedford Flag represents the spirit, the history, and the closeness felt by the community of Bedford; that is shown enthusiastically at Bedford Day.

Drum Major Christi- Anne Castro conducts the band with precision.

Blue White And Us

Good friends Alice O'Hara and Cheryl DiNisco study in the library.

Enjoying lunch with friends are Julie Oates, Tina Pisani, Joan Weinfurt, and Christine Moody.

What would the world be like without friends? It would be unbearable - a "day without sunshine", if you will - all work and no play. Yet how do you describe what a friend is? Each friendship is special, with its own unique qualities. Whether two people meet at school, at church, while riding a bike, or through a mutual acquaintance, the bond that develops between them can become the very rewarding relationship called friendship.

A true friend is not just someone to sit with at lunch or discuss strategies about a physics test with while walking down the hall. Unless two people can share their innermost feelings with one another, they do not have the basis for a lasting friendship. Sure, you go to the movies and to football games with your friends, but the root of the friendship lies deeper than that. For, unlike the acquaintance who only knows you as "the girl who always giggles" or "the guy who talks all the time in math class", a friend will always know you for the person you are inside.

Unfortunately, there are times when a friend must be called on to draw you out of the depths of despair. Taking it all in stride, he or she puts up with your mood swings and calmly listens to you relate the story of your latest "failure". Whether they are told over the phone, in the dark auditorium, or in the cafeteria at lunch, many problems are solved by just talking to a friend.

There's a certain feeling that accompanies friendship - a comfortable feeling. With the knowledge that your friend will accept you no matter what opinions you express, you can be completely honest. The easiest way to define a friend, then, is to describe what you do and how you feel with that person. One of the most important elements of friendship is the unspoken understanding that even if you don't keep in touch, there will always be a special friend far away who cares about you.

Friends, Anthony St. Amour and Darrell Hanson "hang out".

"... Just walk beside me and be my friend."

Gemena Murchison and Stacy Cash are two friends who will always share their special memories of high school.

Heidi Urquhart and Jane McKee don't want to be separated for a minute.

Blue White And In The Air Tonight

Somehow it all seemed too impossible, but as night began to fall on the eve of the Junior Prom, the transformation of the gym came to a close. After a long day of decorating, the juniors had succeeded in creating a dreamy fantasyland for the setting of their prom. A castle-like garden was shaded by a sky of purple and blue streamers. Gates, columns, a running fountain and even a duck pond all enhanced the romantic setting.

Preparations made on May 24, 1986 for the exciting evening ahead caused the juniors as much worry as the decorating had. Finally, after the curlers and makeup were put away, the gowns and tuxedos were on, and the last picture for Aunt Mable in Kalamazoo was taken, they were off. Most couples, often traveling in groups of four or six, went out to dinner beforehand. The Cambridge Hyatt, Stouffers, and the Sheraton Foxboro were the most popular restaurants.

After dinner they returned to the high school gymnasium to "dance the night away". The highlight of the evening was the announcement of the king and queen. Receiving the honors were Terry Poole and Brian Gauntlett.

All too soon, the clock struck twelve, and the Junior Prom "In the Air Tonight" ended. For many, this did not mean the night was over. Most continued to "bop" around at peoples houses. The following day was the traditional "beach day". Not letting the cool weather spoil their fun, many juniors invaded the beaches of Good Harbor, Wingaersheek, and Salisbury. This was a relaxing way to end the previous days' events of decorating for and attending the long awaited Junior Prom. For years ahead this will hold special memories for many in the class of 1987.

In charge of constructing the entrance to "the castle", Adam Erlich, Paul Harrington, and Robert Hauge attempt to put up a wall.

Having a blast, Nancy Porter, Nicole Peterson, Kara Wheeler, Maria Sarcia, and Mary Glazier sit back and relax.

"Decorating for the prom brought everyone together to prepare for the special night."

Junior Prom King and Queen Brian Gauntlett and Terry Poole.

Best friends Teresa Caristi and Sue Burns enjoy a memorable night at the prom.

Prom Court Nominees dance to "In the Air Tonight"

Cheryl DiNisco and Laura Maxon enjoy missing a day of classes to decorate for the prom.

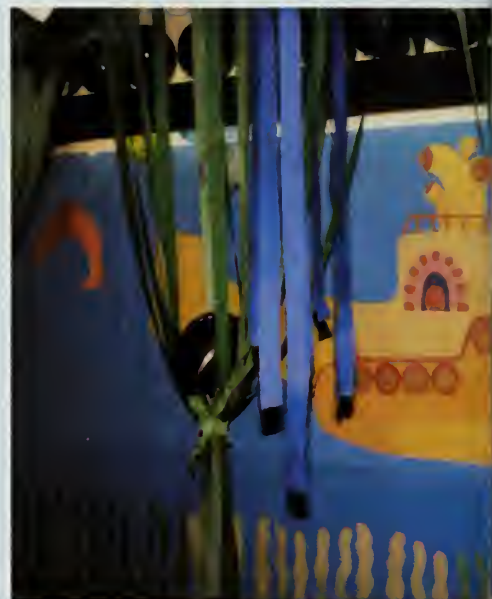

JUNIOR PROM COURT: King Brian Gauntlett, Queen Terry Poole; Court: Debbie DeSantis, Megan Ralston, Gary Kleiman, Jeff Garibotto, Eric Larsen, Tom Bauman, Carolyn Matthews, and Marillian Bueno

Blue White And Spirit

Do they look alike? Charlie Winters and Derek Johnston are hippies on Clone day.

The Yellow Submarine in the senior hall.

Like fireworks on a pitch black night, the days of Spirit Week burst into the gloom of a bleak October calendar. Monday, the only unsigned day of the week rolled by laboriously as usual, but already talk was in the air about the days to come. And then...

Bang! Tuesday (Clash Day) hit everyone over the head with a baseball bat as plaids were matched with flowers, and stripes with polkadots. Clothes dug out from the murky depths of Dad's closet gained a vitality in the light of day that they had not enjoyed for at least twenty years.

Early the next morning (Wednesday, Clone Day) a lone figure treaded into the lobby dressed in a yellow top and jeans. Moments later another person entered wearing almost the same thing. Oh-oh, look out; Clone Day had arrived. Sisters came as each other, students arrived dressed like teachers, and the yellow and blue seniors ran amuck.

The following day was Costume Day, perhaps the most difficult theme of the week. But many were able to overcome the lack of raw materials and ingeniously put together costumes for the day. That afternoon was to be the most exciting of the week; it was time for hall decorating.

Decorating an impressive first-year hall, the freshmen predicted the future with a twenty-fifth high school reunion. In accordance with the Halloween spirit, the winning sophomore hall was "The Sophomore Horror Show". "Eighty-eight Leagues Under the Sea" was the juniors' spirited contribution. A treasure chest, a yellow submarine, and colorful balloons decorated to look like fish were highlights of the seniors' "Enchantment Under the Sea" hall.

The next day, a student wearing red sat alone, devoid of friends at lunch. It was Friday, Blue and White Day, and anyone who dared not wear the school colors was shunned by all. With students dressed in everything from Buccaneer costumes to blue jeans and a white t-shirt, the wave of spirit had reached its crest.

Not another Pete Cacciola. Robert Hauge and the real Pete Cacciola pose for a picture - can you tell who's who?

"Spirit Week gives people a chance to express themselves freely."

Senior girls Meg Gurley, Kathi McGovern, Megan Ralston, Debbie DeSantis, Jill Costello, Becky O' Donnell, JuliAnne Durkin, and Linda Ricci clone each other.

Suzy Asbedian and Steve Gallant show the variety of costumes present on Costume Day.

"Wave and smile at the camera," says Andrea Abbott to Sue Clancy and Paul Harrington as they walk with spirit in mind.

Jennifer Sutton certainly shows spirit in this "bandana split" outfit!

Of course there must be a senior boat in the senior hall!

Blue White And You

Brrring! The 2:00 bell rings, announcing the end of the academic day at BHS. You rush out of G-period class to find your best friend. Now you finally have a chance to tell her the secret you've been simply dying to tell her all day. But you can't talk too long because you have a citizenship committee meeting, and then jazz ensemble auditions. If you don't finish all that by 2:45, you'll scream because that's when soccer practice starts. And above all else, don't forget to drive your sister to her gymnastics class before you go to work. Oh yes, and pick up some milk at the supermarket on your way home.

No problem. The average teenager these days tries to do more things at once than is humanly possible. Not even adults, who live in the oh-so-terrible "real world" could handle some of the things we do. It's a balancing act that calls for all the energy of a youth and maturity of an adult.

The two or three hours right after school are quite possibly when the most learning of our high school careers takes place. This time spent with friends is what we will remember most about our four years here.

Those who would like to participate in something but say they don't know where to look just have to open their eyes. On any day after school, there is almost always something happening from athletics to music to yearbook. The decision of whether or not to join an after school activity is left up to the student. How one fills his or her time outside of academic studies is part of the learning process and development of our individuality.

Patiently waiting, Barclay Schiek looks on as he is wrapped for practice.

Marching band practice is where Peter Corea spends time after school preparing for parades and football games.

After school is a time when friends can take a walk and share some conversation. (Eric Larsen, Terry Poole, and Carolyn Matthews)

The old cafeteria is a perfect place for after school studying, as displayed by Diana Burton.

"My after school activities make me different from everyone else."

It's another one of Gary's bright ideas!

Free time after school allows Tiffany Whitcomb to practice in the band room.

After school, Mandy Telford plays the piano for double sextette.

Taking time out from band practice are Christi-Anne Castro, Scott Udell, and Joanne McDonough.

From the smile on Cristina Allen's face, one can tell she's enjoying class.

Height doesn't come before friendship in this case of tall and short. Adrienne Tsang stands next to her not so pint size friend, Jennifer Koenig.

Happy seniors at last are Gabbie Fougere, Diana Burton, Kellie Paige, Adrienne Weaver, Lisa Pignatiello, Annelouise Couvee.

Senior Class Officers

Being a senior class officer is very rewarding as well as demanding. The officers are responsible for keeping the class cohesive and organizing activities that will make everyone's senior year memorable. But the experience is also a learning one which can be beneficial to all those who are involved.

It is tough enough applying for colleges and keeping your grades up during senior year, but to add to that trying to help a class, increases your worries. The officers take on responsibilities to make sure that all class activities go well. They will do a lot of planning, setting up, and carving out of the activities.

Don't misunderstand - there are advantages to being a class officer. Because they are in on the decision making process about class activities, they are happy when something turns out well. Through their experiences, class officers will learn lessons about working together with fellow students and faculty.

Always busy with something, Greg Crescenzi seems to keep up and sometimes gets ahead.

Senior Superlatives

Although the people pictured on the next four pages were chosen because of their outstanding features or abilities, every student at Bedford High is superlative in his or her own way.

Each year, one of the long anticipated traditions of the senior class is to vote for those whom they feel have superlative qualities. Winners of the superlatives are chosen by ballots distributed among the senior class. The votes are then tallied and the winners announced.

"Year of the Tests" preparer, Rene Holtzman studies on, and on, and on!

The Year Of The Tests

Gone forever are the innocent sophomore and freshmen years. The real world is upon us whether we want it to be or not. Junior year, the year of tests, has arrived.

No more can we brush off the testing like we did the standardized ERB'S. No longer can we make cute designs while filling the little ovals when we didn't know the answers. Now we have to deal with the ominous PSAT, short for Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test, SAT, and the Achievements Tests, all of which could scar us for the rest of our lives if we don't take them seriously. We are sure that these tests are going to determine our future - whether we will be gas station attendants or Nobel prize winners, all depends on scoring between two-hundred and eight-hundred. This score is assigned to us by taking the number of correct answers less a percentage of the wrong answers. Yes, guessing could hurt you.

To improve their scores, many Juniors take courses both in and outside of school. Some buy a disc for their computers while others get the Barron's SAT preparation books. All-night studying is not uncommon the night before the test. However, no matter how hard we study, it doesn't make a whole lot of difference in the end.

When leaving BHS at noon that Saturday, everyone is complaining about how poorly they did, and even those who know they did well don't dare tell anyone. Well, juniors, take heart that the beginning is over, but you still have a long year of important tests and decisions ahead of you. Good luck!

Cars - The Status Symbol

In America, the automobile has become part of our way of life. Cars were meant for transportation at first, but have evolved already into something much more. Cars are status symbols, signs of people's tastes, or lack thereof, and are now used for our convenience at places like fast food restaurants. For these reasons, and many more, cars are a very large part of teenagers' lives.

When a high school student first receives his license, he becomes an instant celebrity. Everyone asks him for rides and people he has never talked to before walk up to him in the halls and want to shake his hand. For guys, the girls realize that now that he has his license, the guy can take the girl out on a really hot date. For girls, getting her license shows the guys that the girl has reached a higher level of maturity.

The amount of popularity you receive after getting your license depends greatly on what kind of car you have. If you only have the family station wagon, chances are that you will only get the people you don't want to know to like you. On the other hand, if you have the family Porsche, or better yet, your own car, you are bound to have members of the opposite sex swooning all over you to take them on dates. After all in every old movie, the prettiest girls always go out with the guys who have the nicest cars. And, as we all know, history does not lie.

Being able to drive a car is not necessarily all-important. Many teenagers go through high school without their licenses and enjoy being friendless and alone on the weekends. They don't mind having their parents drive them on dates, because parents can keep good company. Having a car is not absolutely necessary to survive at BHS, but many students find it boosts their social lives.

The Blahs

Sophomore year . . . the Blahs. It's not that a sophomore doesn't enjoy life, but scribbling notes in U.S. History and butchering earthworms in biology no longer hold the excitement they once did. The magic of eating a bagel at lunch is just not there anymore.

However, it is a relief to know the quickest way to your locker from some remote part of E-wing. By sophomore year, a student has adjusted to odd and even days. Association with upperclassmen is now possible because they've almost forgotten how you acted freshman year. Meanwhile you can wonder what leaked into Bedford's water supply and made all the ninth graders so short.

This is the year to relax while older friends are worrying about proms and college applications. And the best part of all, sophomores . . . you're halfway done!

In the old cafe, Kim Farmer anxiously awaits soccer practice.

"Look at the guy's hair!" exclaims John Salsesa while pointing at Jay Smith's hair.

Hangouts

Many people feel that there are no hangouts in Bedford. Actually, you just have to know where to look. The critics are correct in their observations that there is no one place, such as an "Al's" from "Happy Days" fame, for students to spend their free time. But give kids their liscences, and get Mom and Dad to let them borrow the keys, and social outposts are bound to spring up.

One such rendez-vous is Davis School. On any given weekend night you'll find cars pulling up behind the school to converse about next week's football game or Mr. Palmer's chemistry tests. This only lasts until the friendly neighborhood committee of "Senior Citizens Against Bored Youths" calls up the police to inform them of the student "uprising". Soon after that the gendarmes leave their Dunkin' Donuts nest to restore order in a suburban town gone lawless.

The impact of the fast food business on the kids cannot be denied. Examples of Saturday night hot spots are Papa Gino's and McDonald's. The children, tired of their mother's "American chop suey" flee in droves to their Great Road sanctuaries. There they can relax and enjoy the "ambience" of McDonald's, with a Big Mac in one hand and a Shanghai McNugget in the other.

Modern technology has affected Bedford youth through the divine VCR. Culture comes home to the kids through such epics as "Hot Dog - The Movie" and "First Blood", which everyone has seen at least twelve times. The machine has made the home a hangout that parents very strongly prefer.

So you see, Bedford may or may not be the "Deadford" that many BHS students say it is. It all depends on where you are.

Sophomore Hall is a great place to hang out, as Russ Harrington and Casey Hawley know.

"I worship you Lore, you're a SENIOR!"
(Lori Goodwin, Lore Fields).

As an aspiring concert violinist, Kitty
Rosewall tries to play her piece perfectly.

Freshman View Of A Senior

(Article written by a senior)

As freshmen form selective cliques
And march toward their class,
A bold shadow stands alone,
This year will be his last.

What do these freshmen think of him,
The senior, standing tall?
Can they see his hopes and fears,
Or do they care at all?

Everyone knows how a senior feels about a freshman. Yet, what if the tables were turned? How do freshmen view seniors? Are we bright, impressive, mature, and respectful, or do we just take up locker space? Only a freshman can answer this question truthfully.

Posing as a non-senior, I scouted the freshmen hall, interrogating the unsuspecting ninth graders.

One remark came as a surprise.
The student simply stated, "I look up to them." Turning to face this brilliant person, I realized he was about one foot shorter than me. Discouraged, I pressed onward.

The most common response was,
"I wish I was them." When asked for a reason, a simple shrug preceded the

Where To Study

The scene: Freshmen English Class.

The teacher rushes into the room, freshly mimeographed sheets waving in her hands. She passes them to a student in the front row and tells him to take one of each page and send the rest back. Just as that familiar "ditto sheet" odor pervades the nostrils, the student reads the title of the sheet and groans with dismay. "How and Where to Study" . . .

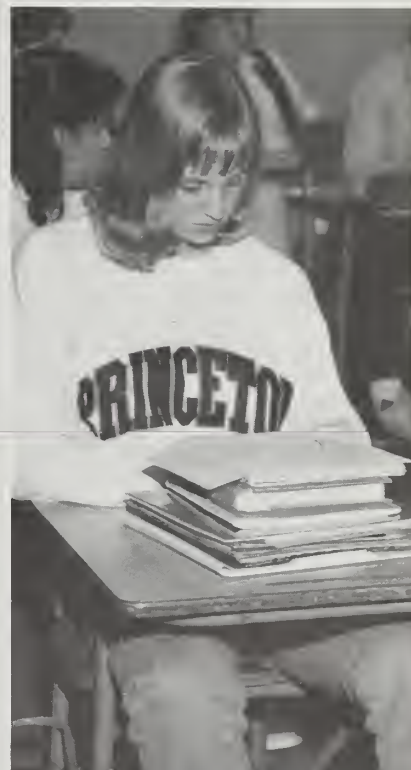

We have all seen specific instructions at one time or another which direct us in no uncertain terms to the perfect place to study. Although there are variations on the main theme, the song generally runs like this:

"Create a corner of your own in your bedroom. Be sure to always study there to maintain good study habits. Keep the desk tidy and well lit. Sit in a comfortable chair, but do not get too comfy. Remember that when you sit, good posture will result in good grades and a pleasant outlook on life."

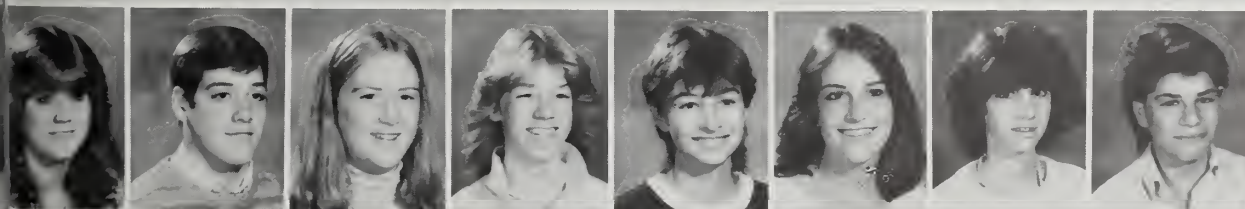

Well, something like that anyway. Let's face it, one of the most common places of study is not even a place at all. It's a period of time, as in the class before the crucial subject, or in home-room while BHS Today is blasting away, or during lunch, or best of all, in those too short seconds right at the beginning of class. If you are a fairly conscientious student, you might get your work done during study hall, in the middle of work hours, on the bus in the morning, or for some, while serving coffee for NHS.

With so many places to study, which is the best one? It all depends on how serious you are. For most of us, studying socially is the only way; in other words, the old cafe. What could be a more convenient place to eat, gossip, and maybe even open a book? Good intentions or not, study parties just don't always work. (How can you resist the temptation of ordering a pizza and watching "Family Ties"? After all is said and done (or not done), sometimes it's necessary to take 2 or 3 No-Doz. Then you'll stay up until 3:30 listening to the radio and reading The Grapes of Wrath that was due last week. But that's what high school is all about, right?

Aspiring Princeton student Courtney Chubb studies hard all day long.

Hard at work, Mrs. Drummond solves school problems.

Mrs. Drummond: Hard Work Pays Off

In Anne Drummond, Bedford has found an Assistant to the Superintendent with a great deal to offer. Before Mrs. Drummond arrived in Bedford, she worked as a teacher and head of the math department in both Connecticut and Illinois. As luck would have it, this extraordinarily talented and dedicated woman came to the Bedford school system in 1969. For ten years she was head of the math department here, after which her record as an educator promoted her to the position of Assistant to the Superintendent.

Eager to bring new developments to Bedford, Mrs. Drummond often creates pet projects which she feels will benefit our town's schools. Mrs. Drummond has always been a great advocate of integrating computers for school use, and she says she greatly appreciates the Metco project as a way to bring students from all backgrounds together.

The school has changed, of course, since Mrs. Drummond's debut here in 1969. Fads, she says, come and go like the wind, and high schools seem greatly affected by trends. However, she also feels that no matter what the times, teenagers are teenagers, not adults, something she feels every educator should remember.

Even with her busy career schedule, Mrs. Drummond finds time to be a wife and a mother. During her early years in teaching, she raised two children, but her son passed away at the age of nineteen. She now has an excellent relationship with her daughter, who is a full-time wife and mother.

Enthusiasm and a general appreciation of what life has to offer characterize this brilliant woman. It is certainly good to know that she is working in such an important profession as the education of the youth of America. We hope Mrs. Drummond will continue to be a guiding force in the development of the Bedford school system for many years to come.

Mrs. Drummond keeps busy to make this school tick.

Always dressed with a smile.

Sociology: A Group Effort

Sociology, a junior-senior social studies class, attempts to teach students about "humanizing". Students learn about different social groups and what makes each one individualistic. It is a class which strives to erase the stereotyping that high school students, and adults as well, live with today.

When a student takes sociology, he learns to share many personal experiences of his life, without the fear that others will laugh at him. The atmosphere of the class is such that "cliques" are eliminated. Students get to know each other as real people, instead of as a "jock" or a "brain". It is hoped that through this course students will come to a better understanding of different cultures around the world.

Although the course was already in existence when she came to BHS 10 years ago, Mrs. Ralston has made the course what it is today. Her enthusiastic teaching and interest in the individual has made the course one of the most popular here. This is the first year it has been offered as a full year course. In the past, it has always been a two single semester course - Sociology I with the option to continue second semester with Sociology II. Mrs. Ralston said that the majority of students in the past took both courses.

Highlighting the Sociology year is the field trip to the North End; "human observation" is the theme of the trip. After reading portions of Street Corner Society, students visit the North End (the setting of the book) to observe the people there. Mrs. Ralston believes that, having read the book, students are more aware of what is happening around them.

Sociology greatly expands the horizons of all students who take it. Accepting that other cultures can be just as good as America's in different ways, students learn not to stereotype others because of their race or reputation.

As more students take Sociology, it is hoped that racial prejudice and "ethnocentrism" (the belief that our society is the only "correct" one) will be eliminated. Sociology is an extremely worthwhile class because it teaches us to live in a more tolerant world.

Informality in sociology makes it easy for students to talk openly about their feelings.

An outstretched hand is a frequent example of Mrs. Ralston's caring touch.

Were You Arrested This Weekend?

We've all heard the expression "ignorance is no excuse." Thanks to Mr. Sullivan and his Law, the Constitution and You class none of us will ever be reprimanded with that line! Law class is unusual because we learn things important to daily life. Instead of studying chemical equations or subordinate clauses, Mr. Sullivan's classes learn something that all Americans should know: their rights. If we are ever in legal trouble, having had this class will help us out. Also, after taking this class we are able to read a newspaper and actually understand all that legal jargon!

Mr. Sullivan often begins his Monday morning classes with the question "Did anyone get arrested over the weekend?" Of course he hopes that no one was arrested, but he wants students to see how laws in a book apply to real life.

This junior-senior elective class takes several field trips to courthouses and prisons. It is not often that students get to talk to convicted murderers, rapists and armed robbers, but this class gives them that opportunity. At the end of the year, the class even holds a mock trial of its own in a courthouse. Students have the opportunity to be prosecuting or defense attorneys, defendants, witnesses, and jury members. This event is always awaited with anticipation and worry over "Will I win my case?"

Because Mr. Sullivan is a very popular teacher with his students, everyone looks forward to his class. No matter what the subject matter, Mr. Sullivan, with his delightful wit and the lighthearted outlook of a fanatical jogger, adds spark to the study of law. That is probably the most important thing about Law class—it's a place where students enjoy learning.

Mr. Sullivan takes time to explain to his class the relevance of the bottle bill.

Deeply engrossed in a discussion of the criminal justice system, this law class listens with enthusiasm.

"Coach" is a side of Mr. Sabourin that kids don't see in the classroom.

Always willing to help out, Miss Dowling searches for a book for a student.

Three heads are better than one. (Mr. Pilla and friends)

Photography: What's An F-Stop?

As juniors welcome the opportunity to become involved in a new minor, slightly diversified from the required physical education, photography appears on many eleventh grade schedules. However, when Mr. Pilla emphasizes that the class is not a "hack", many students begin to regret their decision. The first term of the course is the source of much confusion centered around apertures, "stopping-down", temperatures, agitating procedures, exact times, and useless fumbling with reels, film, and tanks within the "black bags". One small mistake early on and much time is wasted in the production of an overexposed or improperly fixed photograph. The result is an overflowing darkroom of students after school making an attempt at a simple assignment for the fourth time.

As the year progresses, the students become more interested in the creative aspects of the projects and find themselves increasingly ahead of schedule as they delve into the "unbelievable picture" by superimposing sneakers on someone's head or producing four images in one. A favorite is the "scary monsters" assignment after which many student's folders hold black and white reproductions of hanged stuffed animals, hands dripping blood, or flames engulfing homes, all carefully drymounted with a two and a half inch border. Now the only dreaded days are the few tests concerning film speed A.S.A. versus f-stops. By the end of the year, many of the photography experts who survived the original pandemonium opt to take a second more independently-oriented year of the course.

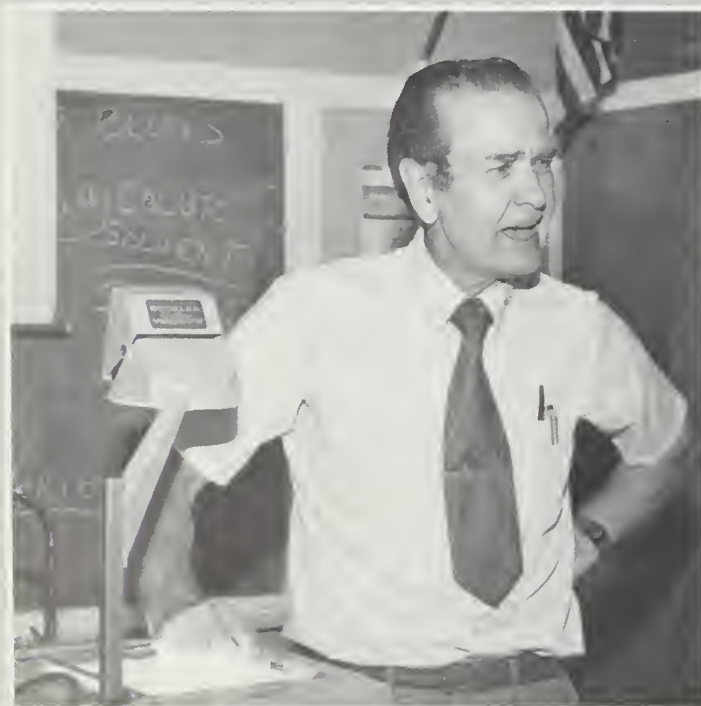

Mr. Tingley: An Enthusiastic Teacher

An optimistic and outgoing teacher during the week, Mr. Tingley leads a somewhat glamorous life off school grounds. A lover of outdoor sports, he is an avid swimmer, scuba diver, wind surfer, biker and sailor.

Mr. Tingley's educational background compares favorably with the quality of his leisure time activities. From Houghton College in New York, he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree; from Salem State a Master of Education degree; and from the University of Oregon he was awarded a Masters degree in biology. He hasn't stopped there, though. Mr. Tingley takes advantage of any other opportunity to learn that comes his way. For example, in February, 1985, he traveled to Belize in Central America on a zoological expedition. Near the second largest reef in the world, he, together with other members of his field, studied the ocean plants and animals that are part of the ecosystem of the reef. He fondly remembers the coralfish and upside-down jellyfish he observed while scuba diving.

When asked why a man of his obvious and diverse talents chose teaching as his profession, he answered that he derives a great deal of satisfaction from educating our youth in useful, positive ways. It is understandable that Mr. Tingley is remembered by his students as a truly outstanding, caring teacher. He puts greater emphasis on developing the curious minds of his pupils than merely requiring them to memorize facts. Calvin Tingley knows that there is always more to learn in order to appreciate ourselves as well as the world we live in. In the pursuit of planting this idea in the minds of those who come to him to learn, he makes for an ideal teacher and role model for the students in this school.

Helping students adds excitement to Mr. Tingley's job. (Mr. Tingley and Christine Green).

"I think the overhead projector is almost as important as collagenous fibers".

Eager to share his knowledge, Mr. Tingley explains Marine Biology to Sue Burns and Debbie Brown.

Mr. Tingley is not always serious; sometimes he lets his humorous side show through.

Recently married Mr. Hagar practices a serenade for his new bride.

Using extra care, Mr. Carlson demonstrates safety to one of his classes.

Even the best need a few notes when discussing the practices of economic policies. Mr. Sullivan always makes sure he has his facts straight.

Squeezing into the limelight with Christine Green, Mr. Palmer flashes his glowing smile.

Mr. Duggan takes advantage of a rare moment to relax in his office.

Economics: A Dead Science?

Is your hero Alex Keaton of "Family Ties"? Do you plan to be one of the Fortune 500? Are you eager to make a fortune yet terrified of the Dow Jones Average? Well, you can start your ascent of the financial ladder in BHS's very own economics class! From taxes to trusts, all aspects of the United States economy are covered in this class.

Even if, for some strange reason, you do not have aspirations of making millions, economics helps you understand movements in the economy that affect everyone. In fact, there has been an increasing interest in this Social Studies department class. The 1986-87 school year boasts a greater number of students enrolled in the class than ever before; for the first time, there are two full classes.

Does this interest stem from the intellectual class discussions or from Mr. Sullivan's entertaining personality? probably both. Word of mouth has spread the popularity of economics at BHS. Students actually enjoy learning about the economy, its movements and mechanisms, and its applications to everyday life (They finally understand what the Dow Jones is!).

Economics can be very stimulating for the average high school student. Reading "Case Studies" in one's text or life stories of such rich and famous people as Adam Smith in that fascinating book "The Wonderful World of Adam Smith" are just some of the delights in store for new arrivals to the class. One can learn about how the Market System is dependent upon supply and demand of products; or they can acquire greater knowledge of that all-consuming topic of elasticity of demand. Anyone who has the opportunity to experience a class where stock market fluctuation is made comprehensible is truly blessed.

Mrs. Donovan: Moving Up

Mrs. Donovan has been in the Bedford High School System for the past twenty years. As an experienced and skilled teacher she was, in 1982, appointed to the position of head of the English department. This increased her realm of influence from the classroom alone to designing the English curriculum for all students in grades seven through twelve as well as supervision of teachers in those grades.

The next big step came this past school year when Mrs. Donovan, due to her experience and desire for the challenge, was promoted once again, this time to a vice-principleship. She says that this new position puts her in closer contact with the students in the school, which is a positive aspect of the job for her. She continues to get great satisfaction from the two English classes she still teaches, her feeling being that this is important to maintain a positive relationship with the students as well as a better perspective of what is happening in the classroom. Never wanting to lose her understanding of and respect for the teaching experience, she states simply "I'm a teacher first." After talking with Mrs. Donovan I find it hard to believe any differently. When asked, she claims that she hopes her new position will not affect her relationship with the teachers any more than with the students. Again, it's doubtful that it could.

The position of English Department Head has been filled by Mr. McCarthy, so, in congratulating Mrs. Donovan, may we also extend the same to Mr. McCarthy. Good luck and many thanks to both.

Tracy Sacco receives extra help from Mrs. Donovan.

Mrs. Donovan takes a break from all of her new paperwork.

ing Vice Principal isn't Mrs. Donovan's only job; she still enjoys teaching.

Mrs. Probolus visits her old home away from home with her son.

Mrs. Rainis

"To know her is to love her."

Every once in a while, a school receives the gift of a teacher whom students can describe with complete honesty as a credit to his/her profession. This teacher not only helps students in the acquisition of knowledge, but also acts as a good friend in times of need. It has been the pleasure of the Bedford school system to have had such a teacher since 1976. At that time, when many of us were just beginning our educations, Mrs. Rainis came to the middle school (then called the junior high). In 1982, she started teaching at the high school, as well.

Who could ever forget the first day of French in seventh grade when Mrs. Rainis burst into the classroom, saying "Bonjour" and "Comment t'appelles-tu"? A flood of enthusiasm for the French language and for the students she was teaching pervaded every class. From the beginning, we all loved her. As we progressed from one grade to the next, Mrs. Rainis continued to teach many of us. Some of us even enjoyed her teaching for more than three of our six years. Her fun and original methods of teaching instilled in us the drive to learn a foreign language.

In the spring of 1986, Mrs. Rainis and her husband decided to start a family. After being here for only six weeks this school year, Mrs. Rainis went home to prepare for her new arrival. We would like to thank Mrs. Rainis for many years of friendship and excellent teaching, and wish her the best of luck with her new baby. We anxiously await the return of her enthusiasm and positive outlook on learning to the classroom.

Preparing for motherhood, Mrs. Rainis watches over Mrs. Probolus' son, Christopher.

"But I thought she didn't have the baby yet!" (Mrs. Miele looks on from behind.)

At the party held in her honor, Mrs. Rainis chit-chats with good friend Mrs. Hovsepien.

Mrs. Golley

It's the classic romance: Boy meets girl. Girl and boy fall in love. Boy must leave. Girl follows boy. And they live happily ever after. Now throw in a couple of twists, such as the girl being from a foreign country and the boy being in the U.S. Air Force. Sounds even more romantic, doesn't it? Believe it or not, it's quite possible that you have seen a woman who has actually lived this this cinema-worthy story. Perhaps you've noticed her austere petite figure in upper B-wing. With her down-to-business attitude, Mrs. Golley, program administrator in mathematics for grades seven through twelve, never hints that she had led a fascinating life.

What? The woman who won't let people switch down a level in class after bombing the first test? (She actually suggests trying harder!) The one who teaches Calculus—the class even the school brains can't handle? The one who psyches out her students by never wearing the same outfit twice?

Behind that stern exterior lies a remarkably kind and intelligent woman who would love to tell you about her experiences. Born and raised in Belgium, Mrs. Golley met her American husband while he was stationed in Europe. When he moved back to California, she followed him. Over the course of their ensuing marriage the Air Force sent the Golleys many places, including Vienna, Ohio, Japan, and finally Bedford.

Having recieved a degree from the University of Dayton, Mrs. Golley decided to become a math teacher. All of her friends expected her to go into French, her native language, and it was "to psyche them out" that she took math.

Mrs. Golley has been in the math department for twenty years. For many years she has been the program administrator, as well. An Algebra II class and a calculus class are all she teaches; the remainder of the day is spent doing administrator-type chores. Her least favorite responsibility is evaluating teachers. (She likes observing the classes, but hates "rating" a teacher's performance.) Every once in a while Joe Civilian will break the monotony of an ordinary day by calling Mrs. Golley to find out how to integrate the natural log of x or something of that nature.

After twenty years of actually living in one town (Can you believe it?), Mrs. Golley has decided to move on. She and her husband will take more time to travel, using their apartment in Brussels as a place to "touch base".

In June, BHS will be losing a very special member of its faculty. Mrs. Golley has earned the respect of her students because of her excellent teaching and her sense of humor. (She says about sarcasm, "If I give it, I have to take it.") Thank you, Mrs. Golley, for all your contributions to BHS and its students. Bon Voyage!

In her office, Mrs. Golley waits for students to come for extra help.

"... Then you squeeze the epsilon to fit your delta value..."

Intrigued by a difficult problem, Mrs. Golley tries to decipher a students' homework.

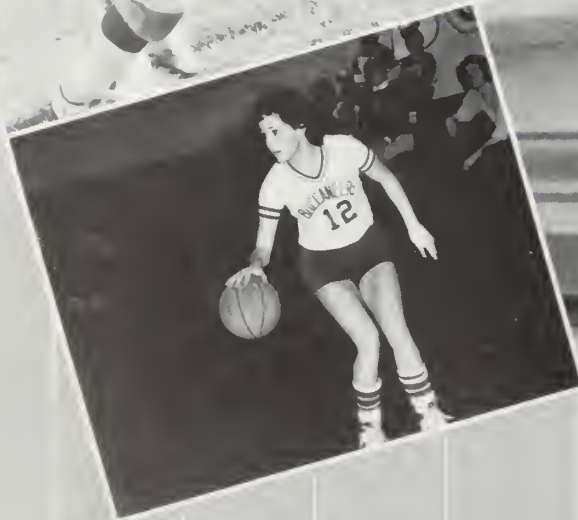

Caught in action, Eric Berman runs after the soccer ball.

Quarterback, Tom Bauman hands off the ball to Herman Rice in this running play, hoping for long yardage.

Senior, Kathi McGovern dribbles the ball, waiting for her teammates to get in position.

All-around athlete, Donny Campbell competes in a track event.

Mike Johnson says, "the more you put into football, the more you get out of it". He knows that football requires skill, and that it demands a sense of desire from the player. He has this desire and has worked hard to be his best.

Mike's most rewarding experience was during a game in which the offense kept running the same play, until they finally scored. He is proud that his team has won more games than the past teams have.

Punter, Scott Birmingham gets off a tremendous kick.

New And Improved

Bedford football this year was the best it has been in five years, with twelve seniors on the team. By the end of the season the Bucs had a 4-5-1 season record. They had a chance at the DCL title, but suffered a defeat to Lincoln-Sudbury. This loss resulted in Lincoln-Sudbury taking the title for the second year in the row. But the Bucs refused to give up, and worked hard, to prepare for Concord.

On Thanksgiving, the Bucs' defense, which was one of the best in the DCL, crushed Concord's run. The defensive ends tried their best to be on the receiving end of the pass every time; the backfield refused to give up any ground. Our quarterback, Tom Bauman, helped to lead the Bucs to four hard-earned victories. The offensive line performed perfectly in blocking for running backs.

The team did an awesome job this year, working hard and performing well. The team was able to reach its full potential under the excellent coaching of Coach Sabourin, Coach Petrillo, and Coach Campbell.

Coaching is a tough job, but dedicated Col. Campbell, Coach Sabourin, and Mr. Petrillo do the task well.

Football gives you "mental toughness to withstand anything", states Herman Rice. "Discipline, leadership, and an all around great time" is what Herman gets out of playing football. Herman's goals in football are to play in college and to make it to the Shriner's game. His most rewarding experience in football was being nominated as an All-Star in the league. Herman says his team, his coaches, and his love for the game help him to reach his potential.

After scoring a touchdown, Donny Campbell and Dave Bauman celebrate their success.

"Our varsity soccer team has a lot of spirit - the best we've had in years!" exclaims Eric Larsen about the team. Eric began to play soccer because it was "the thing to do" in fourth grade. He was impressed that soccer was a sport that girls could play, too. In this sport, Eric gets satisfaction from doing something well. It is a sport in which you can easily see yourself improve, he says, and expects to continue playing in college.

Kick In The Grass

Under the inspired tutelage of Joe Patuleia, the 1986 Boy's Soccer Team worked hard to preserve the tradition of excellence that is synonymous with Bedford soccer. Faced with the loss of eight seniors, the Bucs had an enormous challenge to overcome even before the season started. Most DCL coaches wrote off Bedford, terming it "in a rebuilding period".

To the consternation of the coaches, Bedford did not "roll over and die." Concord, the #1 team in the league, was held scoreless in two defensive battles, while Acton won by a slim one-goal margin twice.

While the Bucs' record was 6-9-3, this in no way was indicative of the will and determination shown by the team. At the end of the season, Bedford had commandeered the respect of every team in the Dual County League. When asked about the future of the team with its eight returning starters, Coach Patuleia uttered a profound, "We're gonna do it."

One of the more embarrassing moments to an athlete. However, what are friends for, right? Paul wants to continue playing soccer in college, most likely as an intra-mural. After college though, he does not want to lose the game. "I'll still be playing when I'm an old man."

Almost ... Again

The Bedford High School Girls' Varsity Soccer Team had a season struck by injuries and illnesses that made it necessary to have an ever-changing line-up. In the tough Dual County League, Bedford's young team of eight juniors, seven sophomores, and two freshmen came out of the season with a league records of 6-6-2, and an overall record of 9-6-3.

Among the highlights of the season was the 3-1 victory over Lincoln-Sudbury at Sudbury's home field late in the season. This was a great accomplishment for the team because L.S. is very rarely beaten at their home field. Bedford also gave undefeated Concord a tough run for their money this year. The season ended with a upsetting tie with Bishop Fenwick, that kept the team from going to States.

Although the season may have ended too quickly for some, the team is looking forward to next year when the entire group will be returning. With one successful year of playing together already behind them, the Bedford Girl's Soccer Team should once again be contending for a tourney seat.

Two Shy

This season was the best yet for the Varsity Field Hockey Team. Because fifteen players spent a week at field hockey camp in Maine, the girls began the fall season in strong form. This proved to be a great asset for the team all season long and was probably a key part of their near-eligibility for states competition.

Leading the team as captains this year were wing Lisa Linz and half-backs Kathi McGovern and Alice O'Hara, all of whom made the DCL All-Star team. Goalie Leslie Fryer and link Robin Folweiler also were granted this honor.

Using a new more efficient set-up on the field, the team hoped to set a precedent for future seasons. Called the Link System, the new arrangement incorporates three new positions: left link (Folweiler), right link (Jennifer Sutton), and sweep (Jackie Weicker).

Although the team took much ribbing this season for "always tying," there is a fact that many people overlook. When a team ties, it gets one point for it (as opposed to zero points for losing and two points for winning). Therefore, even though the Bucs did not win many games, they accumulated fourteen points throughout the season. This is just two points shy of the sixteen needed to make states.

The second to last game, at Concord, was one of the most bitterly fought matches of the season. To make states, the team needed to win this and the next game. Backed by a defense that had an outstanding year, the entire team played well. The game ended in a draw, but the team was pleased to have made history in other ways: Bedford was undefeated on its home field.

Train For Success

The 1986 Boys' Cross-Country Team experimented with a novel approach to enjoying a successful season. Riding a 17 consecutive win streak, the team opted to train less during the all-important summer months. Alas, the opposition didn't cooperate and the early season brought three consecutive losses. Rather than close this chapter in Bucaneer harrier history, the team, led by Captain Phil Lawrence, regrouped and peaked during the post-season meets.

At the D.C.L. All League Meet, the talent and depth of this team was realized. Bedford runners seized 6 of the top 16 places overwhelming the opposition and defeating dual-meet champion Weston by 31 points (45-76).

The team, now running with a solid base of training miles, traveled to Franklin Park in Boston for the E MASS divisional championships. The highest any Bedford team had previously placed was third. This year the team took second place, qualifying for the second consecutive year for the State Finals.

Tiffany has worked hard enough, and maybe one day, she will be a Boston Marathon winner!

Running Around

This year the Girls' Cross-Country Team was under the guidance of a new coach, Mr. Huff. After losing five seniors to last year's graduating class, this was expected to be a rebuilding year. Seven returning members and three new members made up the ranks of this year's team, led by co-captains Tiffany Whitcomb and Terry Poole.

The team started out well, winning the first three meets. A victory over Concord-Carlisle, Bedford's nemesis, was a first in many years and a definite season highlight. Unable to maintain the winning record, two meets were dropped to Weston and Acton.

The construction of the all-weather track, though long awaited and enthusiastically received, did interfere with some competition. Bedford's course was altered three times to avoid this obstacle.

Next year, we look forward to a strong team, with five returning members, rounded out by new recruits.

Out for a brisk jog are Wendy Long, Christine Anderson, and Tamar Kupiec.

Putting Along

The DCL was very strong this year, the competition tough, and the talent plentiful. Bedford's team was relatively young and had a difficult time competing against the iron. They had their opportunities but could not quite put together the necessary ingredients to beat the other teams. Jayson Gilberti and Luke McInnis worked hard to improve their games and were an asset. Mike Giard and Aaron Finklestein, both freshmen, have potential for the future. Chris McIntosh was a team leader throughout the season, having contributed greatly to the successes the team did have on occasion. And, of course, team star Tom Hagerty always helped out. Future efforts will depend on the tenacity of the younger players, so for now it's wait and see.

Thanks to his father, Tom Hagerty began playing golf at a very young age. He plans to continue his sport in college and perhaps compete on a professional level. Why does Tom enjoy golf so much? He says it's a sport where you can get away and forget about everything else in the world. In a match at Concord-Carlisle, Tom succeeded in conquering a rival, going neck and neck through the last few holes and pulling ahead on the final strokes.

She feels that cheering is a way to show her school spirit and make her high school years fun and exciting. Lore and her new squad attended a cheerleading camp, where they won the "squad unity" award. Cheerleading has offered Lore the satisfaction of urging her team on with spirit!

Gimme A "B"!

This year's Cheerleading Squad rose to new heights in excellence and spirit. From the beginning it was a growing year, starting with the combination of two squads to make one grand squad that cheers for the football, soccer, hockey, and basketball teams. During the season, the squad showed a lot of spirit and support for their team. For example, despite the pouring rain at the Fitchburg Varsity football game, the girls could always be heard cheering the team on to victory. They also encourage their teams with posters, banners, and pep bags filled with candy.

The cheerleading squad made many good changes this year, thanks to the imaginative new ideas brought up by "the girls" and their new coach Lisa Manning, an ex-Bedford High cheerleader. Altogether, it has been a great year and a wonderful experience for all of them.

Are these Bedford cheerleaders preparing to be the next Rockettes?

Sprinting Ahead

The Girls' Swim Team this year successfully won 7 out of their 11 meets, with considerable input from the younger members of the team.

Led by senior captains Laura Maxon and Karen Hill, and junior captain Courtney Chubb, the team put in a good show at the DCL Championships (placing fourth), the Sectional Meet (eighth), and the State Meet (fifth). The highlight of the season came during the Dual Meet against Acton-Boxoro High School, where the medley relay team out-touched the unbeatable Acton girls. Bedford lost the meet, but winning that relay will always be a milestone in Swim Team history. Unfortunately, Bedford's full strength was not represented in the State meet, due to a rule changed by the MIAA (Massachusetts Athletic Association) - Acton will never know for sure whether or not they would have won against the Bedford relay team.

All in all, the girls had a fine season and a lot of fun this fall. They would like to give a special thanks to Coach Sandy Maczko for all of her hard work.

Flipping Around

The Bedford Aqua-Bucs had one of their best years ever, winning three of their meets in a league dominated by superpowers such as Weston and Acton-Boxborough. After last year's rebuilding year, the team returned in full force with seniors Jeff Eagles, John Carter, Bob Huffman, and Tom Welch, who led the team on to an incredible season.

With both Jeff Eagles and junior Brian Maczko qualifying for states, diving has become one of the Aqua-Bucs' stronger events. Jeff, already a top diver in his age group, is expected to win the state diving championship this year. And after that, who knows?

Coach Sandy Maczko was a vital part of the Bucs' successful season; she provided lineups and training that made a difference.

With all this talent and an excellent coach, why don't more BHS students attend swim meets? That's a question swim team members are always asking their friends and acquaintances. Next year, a group of students should get together and head off on a fun-filled night of cheering the team on to victory.

"I've always enjoyed swimming," claims Bob Huffman. Because of the competition involved, being able to swim and do well gives Bob a sense of accomplishment. His goal in swimming this year is to knock off time from his 100 meter race. Although this is taking considerable time and hard work, Bob is happy to be slowly achieving this goal. Bob makes a point that Coach Maczko's efforts contribute to the team's performance.

Back In Control

With the start of the '86-'87 season, the Varsity Girls' Basketball Team was in the unenviable position of succeeding last year's state semifinals team. Unfortunately, that team graduated five seniors, and only three varsity players returned. Nobody expected anything from Bedford other than a chance for an easy victory.

However, the season started off well with Bedford posting six non-league victories and one league loss by the end of Christmas vacation. In January, the girls were still faced with an uphill climb towards respectability in the DCL. Even though they lost to Concord and Boston Latin, Bedford proved to itself and the league that it was capable of playing among the best. The rest of the season showed a completely different team that played strong and sometimes heartbreaking games.

This season was a classic example of how attitude can overcome all odds. Virtually every team in the DCL had more talent, height, and experience than Bedford; yet the team proved to be a challenge to every opponent because of sheer determination and hard work.

Laura aims to be counted on to play well on both offense and defense. She credits Coach Patuleia for helping the team reach its full potential and take pride in hard work.

At Long Last

Looking back on this year's season, one should note that the 1986-87 varsity Boys' Basketball team played with high intensity and good effort to provide excitement for the home crowds. Playing many games as definite underdogs, the Bucs time and time again scared opposing teams by displaying their talented play and clear determination to fight to the very end. As a result, the Bucs came very close to winning many games.

The Bucs were led by their energetic and knowledgeable coach, Mr. Greenwood, along with tri-captain seniors Scott Birmingham, John Buxton, and Greg Crescenzi, and senior David Szczesniak. The outstanding performances shown by juniors David Bauman, Scott Ricker, and David Concanon, along with sophomores Danny Callahan, Taavo Godfredson, and Karl Farmer, revealed to the league that the Bucs will most definitely be a team to be reckoned with in future years. This year showed everyone that the long-lost winning tradition is on its way back to Bedford High.

From the outside Taavo Godfredson gets the jumpshot off for two points.

John Buxton interferes and begins to retrieve the ball for Bedford.

Basketball provided Dave Szczesniak with enjoyment, exercise, and a break from school. New to BHS this year, Dave evidently had no trouble fitting in with the Bedford team. He says the most rewarding aspect of basketball is the feeling of playing well and the exhilaration of winning. Dave's goal in basketball was to play his best and to help out his team. He has liked playing since he was young, enjoying the competition and the fun of the sport.

Caught in the act, Dave Szczesniak tramples over players to get the point.

Danny Callahan just lets the ball slip through his fingers into the basket.

On the ice, Tom Porter stretches with all his might to give the puck one final hit.

Ready for the pass from Peter Dion, Mike Shamon gets in position and awaits the puck.

Cool As Ice

The winner of this year's "Latest Practices" award is the Hockey Team. Five nights a week, if there are no games, these players practice from about 9 to 10 pm. Managers Teresa Caristi and Sheila McCravy keep the records straight by marking shots on goal and who made them, etc. At the end of the season, the team will lose good talent as seniors Keith Molinari (center), Chuck Mahar (forward), and Tim Murray (goaltender) graduate. However, next year's hockey team looks like it will be strong with starting goalie Anthony Alves and a solid defense.

The team also boasts one of the best coaching staffs in Division II Hockey. Mark Lane has been with the program for a number of years, and was the All-Star coach last year.

By next year, the team hopes that reconstruction of the Shawsheen rink will be finished. It would also be nice if a better heating system were installed, they say, because the rink gets pretty cold. (Maybe that's why the cheerleaders didn't go to that many games.)

An opponent and Chuck Mahar get all tangled up on the ice.

They say that we are the television generation, but did you know that t.v. even inspires young children to play sports? Keith Molinari, at age five, became interested in hockey by watching the professionals on television. His interest has continued since then, and he even plans to continue playing in college. This talented center says that winning and scoring in the game are the best parts of the game. Good luck in the future, Keith!

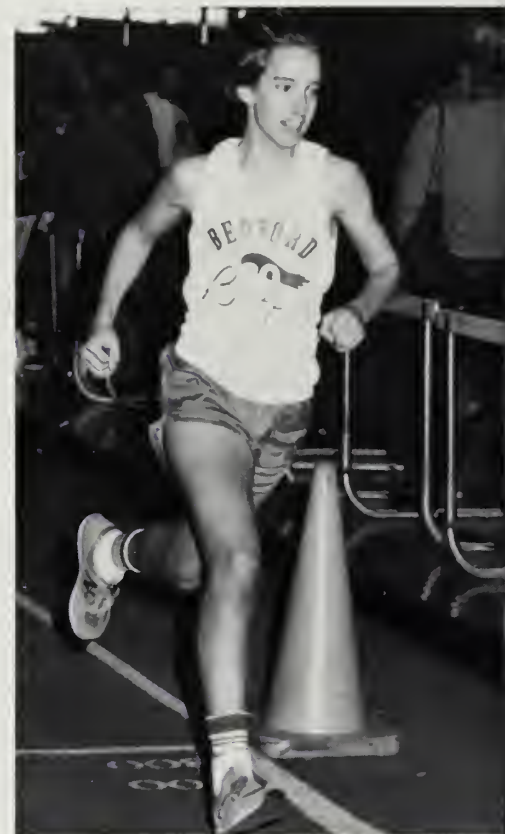

The opponent gets the pass off just as Mike Shamon tries to rescue the play.

Alone at the net, Tim Murray thinks about what he has to do to keep the other team from scoring.

The time before a race is a time for meditation.

Right On Track

The Winter Indoor Track Team had a fine season, considering the lack of numbers on the team. In some meets, they competed with as few as eight runners (when they should have had near twenty). The team deserves credit for their dedication to running during this harsh winter, when most people would rather be cuddled up by a warm fire. Led by seniors Phil Lawrence (the DCL mile champion) and Darrell Hanson, as well as junior Donny Campbell, the boys ended up with a 3-9 record. The future looks bright, with freshman Jamie Perry becoming Bedford's top two-miler. Other runners with significant contributions to the team were Eric Anderson, Gary Kleiman, Bob Hanley, David Rhodes, and Adam Tobey.

After finishing his race, Bob Hanley is congratulated by Mr. Sullivan.

Eric Anderson and John Curran close in on the finish line.

Darrell Hanson first ran track to fill the gap between soccer and baseball. Because he enjoyed track, Darrell quit baseball in order to run in the winter and spring seasons. Darrell's specialty is the 1000 yard run; his main goal for this year is to run it in 2:20 or less. Most embarrassing moment: During a race with 500 spectators, Darrell tripped the runner in front of him right after the start. Both of them fell and they all had to start over.

Sprinting towards the finish line, Don Campbell blows away all his opponents.

Gary Kleiman pushes toward the finish, which he thought he would never see.

While visiting the U.S., Verena Unruh decided to join the ski team to meet some new people. She has been downhill skiing for the past ten years, but this is the first time she has tried cross-country. Verena's most rewarding experience was placing 23rd overall during the first cross-country meet, which is excellent for a first time skier. Her goal during the ski season is to earn a Varsity letter, because she would really like to earn a Bedford athletic jacket.

Eric Larsen, with all the attributes a downhill skier needs, has a great run.

Zig-Zagging

The Bedford Ski Team returned this year missing their downhill coach Dale Wilson and unable to find a replacement. The athletic department was nice enough to step in and help the team by hiring professional coaches. There was a great deal of excitement in the pre-season. The boys team had lost some good racers, but had nonetheless really improved over last season.

The first meet resulted in a sixth place for the girls and a fifth place for the boys. The next meet was better; the boys placed fourth in the league, and for the first time in history, the girls placed second. In the third race the team didn't fare as well. Both the girls and the boys finished sixth, due to the disqualification of five of the top racers.

The Downhill Ski Team once again enjoyed a fun year and will miss the seniors Robin Folweiler (co-captain), Susan Clancy, Susy Asbedian, Verena Unruh, Eric Larsen (co-captain), Paul Harrington and Jeff Garibotto.

Kick N' Glide

Contrary to what you might think, there is no "BHS Cross-Country Ski Team". Instead, there are students, part of the BHS ski team, that do endure the ever-painful cross country races for Bedford. Some of these skiers, appropriately called slalom-/cross country skiers, participate in both areas of ski team competition. More often than not, these athletes are not overly enthusiastic about cross country skiing, but somehow they do well in it anyway. There is, however a strong exception to that general rule: Robin Folweiler, who gracefully dominates the Bedford cross country squad. This season Robin was awarded the Skimersterin award for being the best combined Slalom and Cross-Country skier in the league.

In addition to those members of the team, there are some strong-willed and strong-muscled "cross-country only" skiers. These are the ones who go to the Great Brooks Ski Touring Center in Carlisle every day of the week and sometimes the weekend, too. Because of the incredible amount of snowfall this year, the team took full advantage of all of the trails at Great Brooks.

"To get in shape, to become involved with the school, and to meet people" were the reasons why Robert Hauge joined the Cross-Country Ski Team (in addition to the fast-paced excitement of flying down the hill on your rear end). Robert's most rewarding experience was placing in the top twenty at the 1986 Bay State Games. This season Robert has been steadily moving up in the Massachusetts Bay West League. His goal this year is to continue to improve his time in meets.

Fixer-Uppers

Because all athletes are practicing at the same time, the fall season is probably the toughest for athletic training. Everyone crowds around the training room hassling the student trainer to let him or her in before others. The students are supervised by trainer Mr. Cacciola, "Pete", who cares very much for each student as both an athlete and a person. Luckily, the student athletic trainers don't have to fulfill all of their eighty hours of work in a season letting people in the training room; they also learn how to wrap and tape ankles, fingers, shins, and other body parts. Many of their hours are spent at games watching for injuries (and praying that no one gets hurt while Pete is not around).

This winter, the student trainers spread their wings and went to the Middle School to wrap ankles and tape fingers without Pete's careful supervision. During the winter, practices are more spread out so that things are not as hectic.

As Mr. Cacciola looks on, Christine Sword practices wrapping the thumb and wrist of Alison Roberts.

With the help of Jean Venuti, Meg Gurley wraps an ankle.

To protect Barclay Scheick from further injury, Suzy Asbedian wraps his fingers together.

Taking Aim

The rifle team was surprisingly small this year. Although five new members did join, there were only three returning shooters. The eight member team has done exceptionally well compared with many of the past years' teams.

The new coach, Mr. Dyer, was both tough and patient. Using the small amount of practice time available, he worked the team extra hard and showed them many new techniques learned from experience. The team's higher scores proved his methods of shooting to be worthwhile. He helped the team raise its scores to or above their minimum objectives. The team should improve even more next year because six of the members will be returning.

What made Ann Macklin get involved in rifle was the influence of her brother, early shooting with her grandfather, and the fact that it is different than other sports. Ann's most rewarding experience was shooting 173 in a meet. Now that she has already achieved her original goal to beat her minimum objective of 75, she would like to reach new goals of shooting 180 and becoming the top female shooter of the Metropolitan Shooting League.

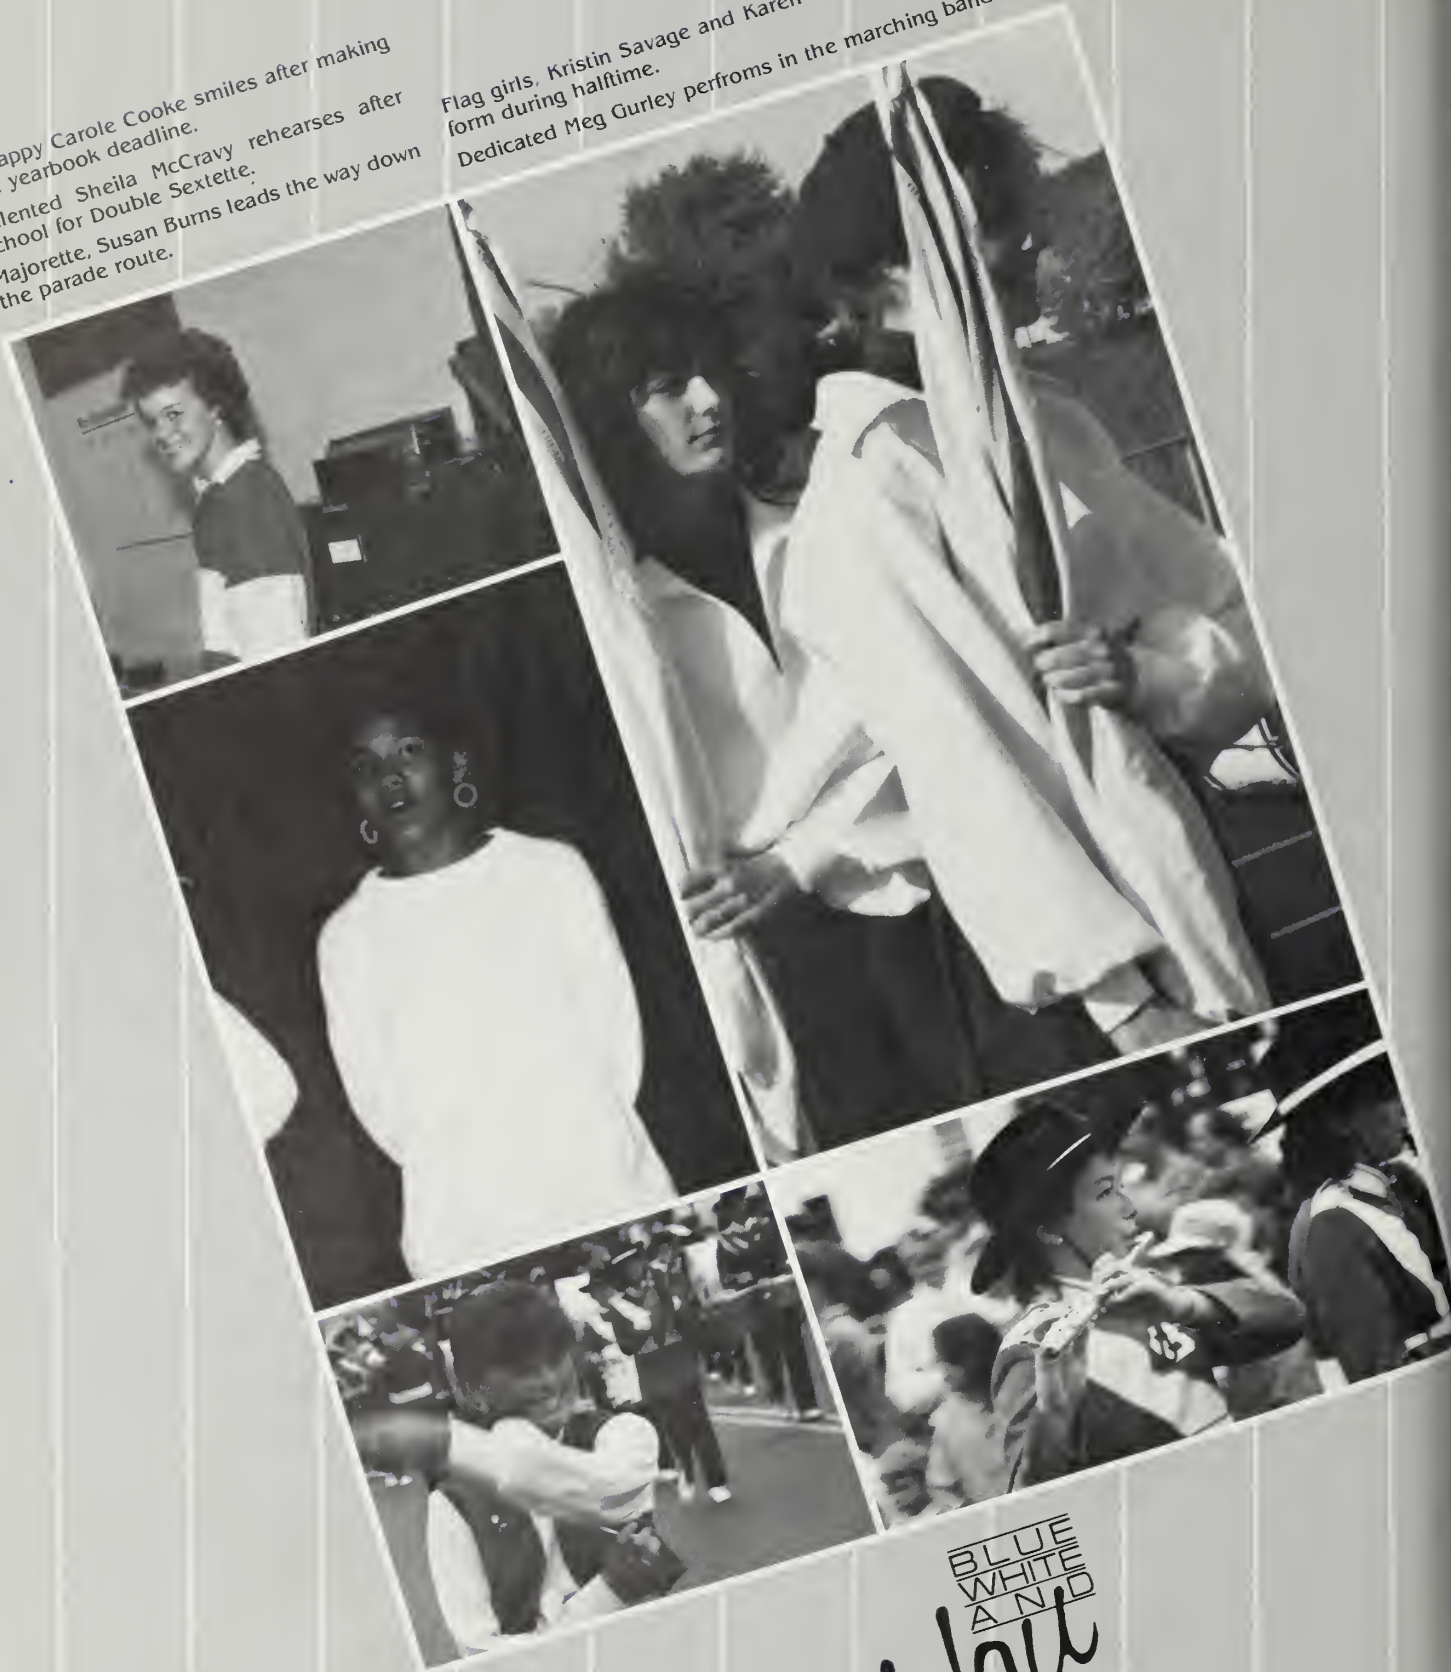

Ready, aim, fire! Ann Macklin finds the center of the target and aims with perfection.

Almost everyone has heard the sweet sounds of the BHS Choir. The Choir consists of fifty-five select male and female members that performs three concerts during the course of the year: the POMS fall concert, the popular Christmas concert, and the spring concert. In addition to this busy schedule, choir members are required to participate in the annual spring musical (this year's is Guys and Dolls). To the surprise and delight of choir members, they will also go to Canada for the Montreal Music Festival in May.

Ensembles is a group of forty-five female singers who meet during school every other day. An audition is not required to be in Ensembles. They combine with the Choir and Madrigal in the Christmas Concert to perform four songs, included "And the Glory of the Lord", and "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah. The ensembles also perform at the Spring Concert with the Choir.

Our Music Department is full of talent, much of which is concentrated in the very select singing group, the Madrigal. It consists of eight males and eight females who were auditioned and hand-picked by the group's director, Mr. Phinney. Although the Madrigal performs in the same concerts as the Choir, it presents a more difficult level of music. This year, with strong male and female sections, Mr. Phinney chose challenging music such as "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place", which the group will perform at the Montreal Music Festival.

Double Sextette is a selected group of supposedly twelve girls, but, well, it's never quite gotten down to that few; this year there are fourteen members. According to Mr. Phinney, one of the requirements of this group is that the girls must be pretty - along with being able to sing. In truth, they are extremely well-received wherever they sing. They travel around town singing at various town functions, as well as performing at the school concerts. And of course we must mention the superb talent and patience of accompanist Mandy Telford.

After a three year absence, the Barbershop Quartet returned to the stage this Christmas season. Making their debut with "Coney Island Baby", Peter Corea, Billy Larkin, Carl Theobald, and Dan Kennedy astounded audiences everywhere. They deserve much credit for having the initiative to form the group on their own and to practice by themselves until all hours of the night. The Barbershop Quartet was a breath of fresh air for the Music Department.

Brian Bradshaw and Elisabeth Colbath practice banging the drums.

If asked to describe the Wind Ensemble, most students would call it a level-5 band course. Even though others don't understand their dedication to music, these select musicians make up the marching band, parade band, Jazz Ensemble, and Pit Orchestra. In addition, they prepare music for the Winter and Spring Concerts, as well as Concert on the Green. Because of the exceptional talent of this tight group, they take the challenge to perform such musically demanding pieces as "Rhapsody in Blue" by George Gershwin.

Jazzing it up, Eric Anderson enjoys playing the saxophone.

The Jazz Ensemble, under the direction of Paul K. Smith, is one of the most exciting performance groups at BHS. Practicing every Friday in preparation for the Winter and Spring Concerts, this group provides a unique opportunity for those involved. Many members are given the chance to write and perform their own solos. The awesome ensemble of trumpets, saxophones, tuba, trombones, guitar, bass, piano, and percussion never fails to please its audiences with its thrilling jazz rhythms.

To be a good violinist takes intense concentration as displayed by Ann Macklin.

Although one the less visible musical groups of the high school, the Orchestra still deserves recognition. Led for the ninth year by Mr. Richard Hagar, the group is composed of violins, viola, cello, string bass and combines with select Wind Ensemble musicians. The Orchestra performs in two concerts, at Christmas and in the Spring. The Christmas concert includes selections from Handel's well-known Messiah as well as the classic "Twas the Night Before Christmas" to delight the audience and demonstrate the Orchestra's great potential.

Concert Band is a group of about fifty musicians under the direction of Mr. Smith, that meets every other day. It is a general level performance group that plays at the winter band concert and the spring concert. Also, the members of Concert Band are required to be in Parade Band, which marches in three parades annually: Bedford Day, Quincy Christmas, and Memorial Day. This year, the Parade Band, along with the rest of the Music Department, will travel to Montreal to compete in the Montreal Music Festival May 14-17.

Tournament Of Plays

Senior Cristina Allen begs for attention while family members Peter Corea, Christi-anne Castro and Matt Huffman don't listen.

On Friday, November 21, the Bedford High School Drama Department once again treated audiences to the annual Tournament of Plays. The Tournament is a competition in which each class presents a one-act play, with a time limit of forty minutes, plus five minutes to set and five minutes to strike. Sherwood Collins, director of the Tufts University Drama Department, was the adjudicator for the night.

The Freshman class opened the evening with "Candid" - a comedic drama directed by Miss Giddis. It discussed the problems that result from a family member's departure. The cast claimed two awards: best supporting actress Lilo Carr and best newcomer Mark Gordon.

The Sophomore class presented "Werewolf", an offbeat comedy directed by newcomer Mrs. Gullage. The play deals with a modern day "werewolf" with a shocking secret.

"Spring Comes to February Farm", directed by talented Tournament newcomer Mrs. Sorgi, won the best play trophy. The sensitive drama also had the best actor for the night, Robert Sullivan.

The Senior class concluded the night's festivities with "Louder, I Can't Hear You", a fast paced comedy about communication. Directed by Mr. Smith and Mr. Phinney, the wacky comedy captured two awards: William Larkin as best supporting actor for his characterization of the zany doctor, and Cristina Allen as best actress for her portrayal of a frustrated mother.

Junior Bob Sullivan, theatrically acts the role that won him best actor.
Freshmen Kate O'Neil and Mark Gordon acts out an emotional scene in Candid.

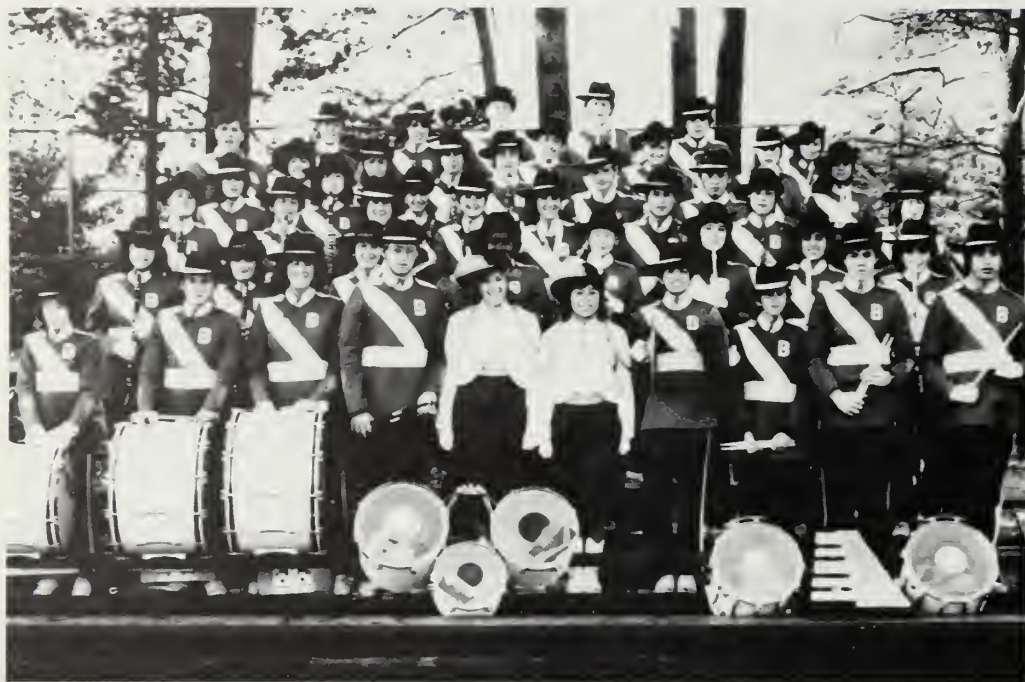

Freshman Chris Welch, with Sharon Wachler's help, put on stage makeup.

Debbie Dalrymple and Jessica Meyers, who are mother and daughter in the play Spring Comes to February Farm, are only two of the talented actors who helped the Junior's win Best Play.

Even in cold weather, Jen Lund, Meg Gurley, Christine Anderson, and Beth Goodpaster cheer the Bucs on from the bleachers.

True spirit-showers, Adam Erlich, Julie McMahon, and Eric Anderson are in top form.

Starting with a "1-2-horns up", the Bedford High School marching band marched their way to greater heights of achievement this year. Under the leadership of band director Mr. Paul K. Smith, the band formed a solid field show consisting of the Spanish march, "El Tigre"; the smooth blues tune, "Killer Joe"; the percussion feature, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers"; and the heartstopping sounds of "Tonight". With these songs, dazzling majorettes, and the exciting new edition of the flag squad, drum majors Christi-anne Castro and Linda Ricci led the band to Sullivan Stadium, where they marched away with third place in the MICA competition. The musicians then went on to strut their stuff at more competitions in Billerica, where they received second place, and Abington, where they were overjoyed to be placed a whopping first in their division.

To escape the pressures of competition, the band still performs halftime shows at home football games. In spite of the muck of the football field, the marching band manages to keep its spirits up by singing and playing "Louie, Louie" in the bleachers. Whether it be in competition or in halftime shows, you'll never see the BHS marching band without "pride in their eyes".

A Drum Major needs to be energetic, spirited, and quick on her feet; just like Christi-Anne Castro.

At one of the night games, the BHS marching band flute section, consisting of Tamar Kupiec, Diana Ricci, and Tanya Kirkland, plays its favorite tune.

Not only is Linda Ricci a Drum Major, but she also plays the bells.

Question: What do you get when you combine baton twirlers, dancers, marchers, a flag squad and a pep squad? Answer: the 1986-87 Majorette Squad.

The twelve girl squad started the year's practices in July to prepare for the many parades, half-time shows and competitions of the upcoming year. This year's squad, led by Co-captains Joanne McDonough and Gwen Moll, consisted of five seniors, three juniors, two sophomores, and two freshmen. The squad performed routines to "El Tigre", "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers", "Killer Joe", "The Roaring Twenties", "Land of 1000 Dances", and "Tonight" from West Side Story.

Along with the rest of the band, the majorettes participated in several field show and parade competitions. They placed third at a competition at Sullivan Stadium, second at a competition in Billerica, and first at the Abington Band Jamboree. They also participated in the Quincy Christmas Parade Competition and performed at Quincy Market. This May, the majorettes will travel to Montreal for another parade competition and a majorette competition, the first of its kind for the majorettes.

Heather Carlton twirls her baton to the music of the marching band.

"But Mrs. Gullage, which end goes up?"

The Flag Squad: Co-captain Erika McGilvray, Debbie Boudreau, Lisa Berkowitz, Gretchen Gerbrands, Janet Caroli, Laura Martell, Karen Holmstead, Kristin Savage, Kristin Godart, Sara Kostishak, Roxanne Hannon, Co-captain Sharon Beardsley.

Flag Squad

Roxanne Hannon and Sara Kostishak, deep in concentration, practice a new routine.

Who thinks this is easy? Mrs. Gullage and her squad don't think so.

The BHS color guard, otherwise known as the flag squad, was organized this year by band director, Mr. Smith, to enhance the look of the BHS marching band. Like the majorettes, they add color and a variety of moves to the feild shows and competitions in which the marching band is involved. They are not a seperate squad set off from the band; they are a part of the BHS marching band.

Although being a part of the flag squad is fun, exiting, and challenging, it also involves much practice and dedication. It is a full time commitment; long hours of practice are spent creating new routines and improving exsisting ones.

The squad would like to express great thanks to Mrs. Gullage for the time, dedication, support, and experience she brought to the squad; and to Mr. Smith for his unending enthusiasm and encouragement. They are looking forward to a successful year and plan to make this first show of flags exciting for everyone!

Co-presidents Eric Larsen and Robin Foweiler with Advisor of S.A.D.D., Mr. Gollis.

The BHS Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) chapter is one of the strongest and most supported organizations in school. The importance of the Bedford SADD group is seen in the fact that almost seventy members are involved. Under the guidance of Bernard Gollis, the chapter allied itself with BAAD (Bedford Alliance Against Drugs) and gave full support to the town's Task Force Against Drugs and Alcohol. This year's largest project was the Celtics Challenge, an attempt to make the high school drug free and prevent younger children from using drugs.

Busy reading the current issue of Forum are Robin Foweiler and Lisa Linz.

In its second year without a teacher advisor and with Adam Erlich at the helm along with assistant editors Tom Welch, Susan Clancy, and Karl Hanf, the school newspaper, Forum, proves that students can work well on their own. Among the highlights of this year's papers were the interviews with Governor Dukakis, Rep. Chester Atkins, and Senator Carol Amick. With phenomenal senior staffers right down to freshman helpers, those four pages found lurking in the middle of the Bedford Minute-man are among the best reading material in school.

French Club is fantastically fun for Julie Brill and Neera Tanden.

This year brought about the advent of the BHS French Club. Organized by Mr. Pavao, the French Club now has members from all levels of French classes. Not an academic club, its true purpose is to promote a social climate of togetherness among French students. This is achieved through parties, caroling (in French), and a weekend retreat in the spring. Also, the French Club runs fundraisers to contribute money towards scholarships. BHS French Club has had strong beginnings, and should be a long standing tradition for years to come.

Sharohn Wachslar, Jackie Weicker, Lisa Gette, Steve Donaldson, and Jessica Meyers cram into Mr. Pavao's room for an important French Club meeting.

"El Club de Espanol", more popularly known as the Spanish Club, is a newly developed club this year. It consists of Spanish students of all levels who enthusiastically present their ideas to the club's officers and the teacher advisor, Mrs. Rull. The first major undertaking was a fundraiser in which Spanish Club members sold "Las Flores de Fiesta", or Holiday Flowers, making money to beef up their treasury. After this first organizational year, the Spanish Club hopes to increase its activities and contribute more to the Foreign Language Department.

The house lights dim, voices hush. The gold curtain slides open and the catwalks are brought up to full. To be in Drama Club is not only to experience the glory of production night; many weeks of late rehearsals, skipped homework assignments, and anxiety attacks precede what is usually opening and closing night of a show. This year marks a shift in management of the Drama Club with the induction of Mr. Phinney and Mr. Smith. From the Tournament to the state festival to the new Student Production Night to the spring play, the Drama Club is always busy.

Drama at its best is demonstrated by Bill Larkin.

The Debate Team has recently grown to "incredible" proportions. With Mr. Milliken as advisor, the team now has over ten members, including many freshmen who already have won awards. In addition, the team has a strong nucleus of older players such as Tom Welch, Dave Kelliher, and Adam Erlich who have continued in their winning ways. This year was especially noteworthy because the Massachusetts state debating tournament was held at BHS.

Sarah Gutierrez prepares to conquer a complicated Math problem.

You probably don't know that your Math League team is in fourth place! This year the BHS all-star team, under the loving supervision of Mrs. Golley, equated their hearts out. Stern captain Steve Donaldson guided his team of devoted mathletes through the meets. But the Math League can't win without your support. Football players could keep some of those Canton kids out back so they miss the match. So what are you doing on Thursday afternoons? Go to the next Math League match, root for your team, and get more than your share of free brownies.

Psyching themselves up, Darrell Hanson, Steve Donaldson, Gary Kleiman are ready to answer Physics questions correctly.

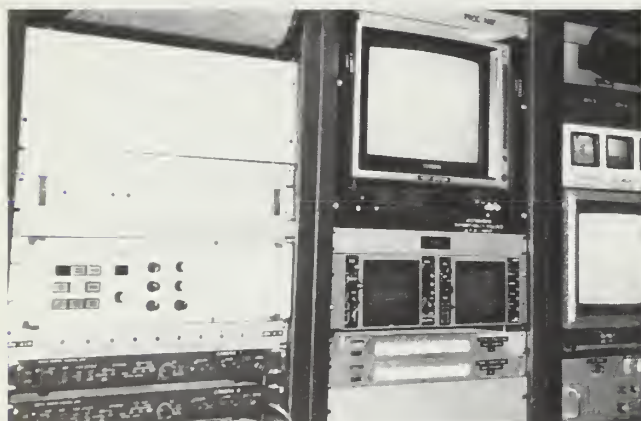

Last year, the Science League tri-tandem of Steve Donaldson, Jim Solomita, and Karl Hanf rocked the walls of the Museum of Science with a fantastic victory, winning the hearts of all America, or at least the science department. With an out of state trip to D.C. on the line, dark horse team Bedford is coming back with a bunch of wiley veterans who know the trade. Under the guidance of Mr. Palmer and Mrs. Krueger, teams to come are assured of being part of a winning tradition. In addition to that, there is the fortunate chance of gaining lab experience.

"Matt & Bill" stars Bill Larkin and Matt Alperin, being mobbed by their many adoring fans.

Ten years ago, amidst curious onlookers, television made its primitive debut here, with the first televised edition of the morning announcements. This rather inauspicious event marked the birth of a small video club that would later grow into a highly visible group known as Tele-Media. Incredibly, a club that began with just three members has grown to have over forty members. As time went on, school interest in Tele-Media gradually increased, and the club added both members and new equipment to its resources. In late 1984, high school students were granted a sneak preview of color, as Tele-Media began integrating color video equipment into their aging black and white system. Adams-Russell cable TV finished installing a full color television facility in 1985. Now, five days a week, we watch Robert, Christi, and Bob in full color as early Tele-Media members could have only dreamed.

The 7:30 bell rings and the Matt & Bill Show, BHS's number one radio show, BHS's only radio show, begins. In a short time, Matt Alperin and Bill Larkin have become the latest school cult figures. People are demanding Matt & Bill coffee mugs, posters, and autographed photos; the masses are lined out the door waiting to be guest hosts on the show. Among the year's segments were the Shaggy Dog, Tuesday Morning Comedy, and the important Travis Hanson math league crisis.

"Pizza and friends" is a great way to describe the AFS pizza party. (Cristina Allen and Natalie Weicker)

AFS' Co-Presidents, Meg Gurley and Cristina Allen, help to make AFS a fun club to belong to.

The American Field Service Club is a group that encourages high school students to learn about foreign cultures. This year's AFS student, Juan Carlos Gutierrez, is here for a year from Colombia, South America. In addition to Juan, there are three other foreign students at BHS this year: Sara Gutierrez, Verena Unruh, and Irit Choshniak. Because of their charming personalities and wonderful senses of humor, they all have done extremely well adjusting to a new culture.

During Bedford Day, the members of AFS and the senior class put forth a joint effort to run a golf booth. At the Choral Society's annual Christmas concert, club members had a table at which they sold punch and orange juice to thirsty singers and the audience. They also held a pizza dinner party to provide others with information about AFS programs.

The best part of being a member of AFS - yes, even better than the citrus fruit sale in the spring - is the experience of meeting people who have been raised in a country far removed from America both by miles and by culture. These brave young students have taken the challenge of living in a foreign country for an entire year, often speaking a language other than their native tongues. It is from these individuals that we are able to learn about foreign lifestyles; and, as a result, learn more about ourselves.

"Hanging out and having fun!" (Irit Choshniak, Juan Gutierrez, Sara Gutierrez, Verena Unruh)

"Juan, what a lady's man!"

Juan: Columbia

I didn't know what living out of the city was, until I came to Bedford. And now I'm so glad to know. Now I know that I couldn't ever meet in the city the good kind of people I met in a town like Bedford.

The keys to a peaceful world are communication and understanding, and you will learn, through AFS, what those words can mean.

Verena: W. Germany

As all the other foreign exchange students, I came here because of the experience to live in a different culture and as a minor factor also to learn the language better. I am having a great advantage as opposed to AFS students though, because I already knew the family. I am having a really good time here with all these after-school activities which we don't have in Germany (West Germany!!!) and I am enjoying a lot. That way you get to know people much better. And as people keep asking me I want to tell everybody that "I'm having a really fun time here in America!"

"What a smile Verena!"

These four have shared experiences in America they will never forget.

Sara: Spain

I came here as an exchange student to experience another culture, to meet different people and to learn English. I think that the experience is worth-while. Although it is always hard to leave your home, family and friends for one year, I found it very exciting to experience a different way of life. I also would like to thank everybody who helped me here. Thank you very much.

Irit: Israel

I am here with my family for a stay of one year. I see this year as a great experience, it is an opportunity to meet a new culture and make new friends. I think that being a foreign student although it is not so easy is worth everything; this is one of the only ways that one can learn about other countries and people. I feel it's important and that's why I try to make the most of it. I hope to always remember this year. And thanks to everyone.

Guest speaker Sarah Getty addresses the members of the National Honor Society on writing.

The Bedford High School chapter of the National Honor Society is an elite group of junior and seniors chosen for their contributions to the school. Although they are made eligible for the society by maintaining an 88 average, NHS members must also distinguish themselves in other ways, including character, community service, and leadership.

Improving the BHS community is the most important goal of NHS. In addition to different services such as selling coffee and, well, slightly stale doughnuts at evening adult education classes, members also sponsor a dance and this year sold flowers for Valentine's Day. The profits earned by these fundraisers are used for scholarships and to sponsor a child in another country.

NHS also runs a tutoring service in which many members spend unassigned and after school time helping other students with academic problems. Finally, the society participates annually in the American Heart Association phone-a-thon. This involves calling companies and Bedford residents to request donations to aid in the research of heart disease.

As always, the National Honor Society has been an integral part of the school community. Its efforts truly exemplify all that young people with good intentions can accomplish. (They aren't always studying!)

Advisor, John McCarthy welcomes the new members at the ceremony.

With a handshake from Mr. Duggan, Robert Flores receives his certificate.

The action of the game.

The senior line getting in position before the game begins (Laura Maxon, Kathi McGovern, Lisa Pignatiello, Becky O'Donnell, Jen Sutton, Verena Unruh, Ann Macklin).

Every year, a month before Thanksgiving, the junior and senior girls form teams to begin practicing their own style of football. The tradition is fondly referred to as "Powder Puff", but the games often end up being as brutal as an ordinary football game. It is amazing what a simple game of flag football can turn into when the desire for victory is instilled in the hearts of the players. With the help of football team members from their grade, the girls practice two or three times a week to prepare for the fierce match. This is a time when female athletes complain about how very little exercise football players are used to, and those who didn't participate in fall sports are taught the importance of stretching muscles.

This year, after some, uh, minor difficulties organizing practices, both the juniors and the seniors grouped to form two teams that played a very close match on November 28. Boasting a line that didn't tire out and a cheering squad (majorette Darrell Hanson and cheerleader Eric Larsen) that was oh-so-helpful, the seniors continued tradition and won the game. After an early 6-0 lead by the juniors, senior Lisa Linz scored a touchdown late in the game to tie the score. Because the rules don't allow the girls to kick from a tee for kick-offs, field goals, or extra points, they had to try for a two point conversion. That they did, and the seniors won the game 8-6.

The entertaining halftime show consisted of the fantastic cheerleading talents of Eric Larsen and Darrell Hanson.

Always hitting the books, Gary offers his input.

This year, BHS was proud to announce ten National Merit Scholarship Semi-finalists in the senior class. Because the number of Semi-finalists is higher than ever before, those students who received the honor were given extra attention. (It is uncommon for a school to have so many recognized students.)

To be considered for the competition, a student just has to take a qualifying aptitude test (fondly referred to as the PSAT/NMSQT), usually in the fall of the junior year. After months of anxiously awaiting their scores, students are relieved (or traumatized) to get the test results. Semi-finalists are found by taking all students who had above a certain number after adding the math score to twice the verbal. Only 437 students out of over 40,000 taking the test in Massachusetts scored at or above that score.

Later this year, the Finalists in the competition will be announced. Of those, less than half will be given scholarships. Whether or not they receive these scholarships, all of our Semi-finalists (and commended students) should be very proud to have done so well on these tests.

Brains and brawn too! Anthony shows his muscles.

Adrienne and her roommate share a special moment.

In June of 1986, Adrienne Tsang and Carolyn Matthews spent a week at Bridgewater State College as citizens of the American Legion Auxilliary's Girls' state while Greg Crescenzi, Adam Erlich, Gary Kleiman, and Tom Welch spent the week at Bentley College as citizens of the American Legion Boys' State. Both Girls' State and Boys' State citizens had the opportunity to learn through experience about government on the local, state and national levels. The three hundred girls at the Bridgewater and the eight hundred boys at Bentley were divided into towns and cities, which grouped into countries; all the countries made up the "state".

Each citizen had the opportunity to run offices such as dog catcher for their town, mayor for their city, or governor for the state. The citizens who wanted to hold offices were very busy writing speeches and campaigning for the elections. After the elections were completed, the House and Senate met to discuss bills that had been submitted by the citizens prior to arriving at Girls' or Boys' State. Later the governor and his or her council met to pass or veto the bills.

When town meetings, press conferences, or House and Senate meetings weren't in session, the citizens listened to many guest speakers. Among those at Girls' state were: Michael J. Connolly; Senator Martin T. Reilly; and some journalists, and lawyers. Boys' state was visited by Jerry D'Mico, Liz Walker, and Governor Dukakis.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE 1986: Erika McGilvray, Adam Erlich, Jennifer Moreau.

The voice of the school at School Committee meetings is fondly referred to as the Student Advisory Committee. Consisting of chairman Adam Erlich, Neera Tanden, Dave Clancy, Phil Lawrence, and Suzy Shapiro, the committee works to resolve issues of importance to the student body. This year, they plan to establish rules to enforce the "No smoking in the bathrooms" policy.

The Legislative Committee, founded in the 1970's, was designed to deal with legislation at BHS concerning faculty and students. However, through its own good work it has eliminated much of its original purpose and legislating has become more of a sidelight for the committee. The main focus over the past few years has been in helping others, through drug education programs or Globe Santa. This year the Legislative Committee took more of a political focus as it initiated debates in the school.

Among the tasks undertaken by the Citizenship Committee are selecting the school's student Citizen of the Month and raising money for the needy. The latter is done through a Christmas food drive and the annual car wash. It is important to have a committee of students to select the Citizen of the Month, a student recognized for leadership in community affairs. The Committee is advised by Mr. Spinosa and chairman Adam Erlich.

Homecoming

With halftime drawing nearer Meg Gurley, Sue Burns, Sue Penney, and Carolyn Matthews, try to keep their minds on the game.

Homecoming King Todd Tyer takes a break from the game to accept the ceremonious scepter.

Homecoming, a tradition that has been carried on at Bedford High for many years, is a time of excitement, anticipation for the crowning of the King and Queen, and, well, trying to cheer the football team on to victory. Although they were not victorious, the team did earn a respectable 14-14 tie with Weston. This year, Homecoming was held on November 1, without the traditional Homecoming Dance, because the game was being held at night, under the new lights on the football field. Unfortunately, we also broke tradition this year by not having a pep rally on Friday to hear all the team captains and coaches give their pep talks.

Spirit Week helped to psych students for the football game. For the previous four days, spirited students attended school in crazy outfits and colorful costumes. Another highlight of Homecoming was the crowning of the King and Queen. Weeks before the game, seniors received ballots to vote for five girls and five boys to be in the court. All the votes were tallied to narrow the list of names. From this new list, members of the senior class chose two people whom they believe best represent them.

The top five finalists were announced at the Junior-Senior Slave Auction, which took the time slot of the pep rally. Finally, after weeks of waiting, the Homecoming winners were announced at half-time of the football game. This year's King (only the second one in BHS history) and Queen were Todd Tyer and Sue Burns. The court consisted of Meg Gurley, Lisa Linz, Carolyn Matthews, Sue Penney, Paul Harrington, Robert Hauge, Eric Larsen, and Barclay Scheick.

We Welcome You

Welcome to the newest section in the 1987 Signum, the mini mag. These fun-filled, fact-packed pages were created just for YOU! In the next eight pages YOU will encounter new and exciting things. YOU will be introduced to a list of today's prices that YOU can compare to the prices of 2010 when YOU are old and gray, in your rocking chair.

Continuing through the mini mag, YOU will find a Bedford spirit questionnaire. YOU will answer tough questions to the best of your ability and see where you rank among spirited Bedfordites.

Your next stop will be at What's Hot and What's Not. Through many hours of hard work, the creators of this exciting mini mag came up with people, places, movies, TV shows, singers, talk show hosts, and tons more of who and what are in and out this year. Who do YOU think will fall in each category? Read Hot and Not to find out if YOU are right.

DRUGS! What do YOU think when YOU hear the word? We've created a mini-mag section on drugs. In this section are percentages showing how many drugs and what type Bedford students have tried and used compared to state-wide and national use.

Your last stop through this thrilling mini mag is at New & Improved, Do You Remember . . .?, and What YOU Liked in 1986. Do You Remember flashes back to years past. New & Improved tells YOU about new additions to BHS. Finally in What YOU Liked in 1986 are facts and figures of what food YOU liked, what videos YOU enjoyed, and much, much more.

Read the next few pages to find out how fun and exciting the mini mag really is! Hold on tight, buckle your seat belts, and have a great time. Remember the mini mag is not just fun, it's an adventure.

Prices

You know how your parents and your grandparents are always saying things like, "When I was a kid, an ice cream cone cost five cents", or "When I was your age, penny candy really cost a penny." You're never sure if you should believe them or not - maybe they're exaggerating. Well, when you have children of your own, you'll say the same things. "A loaf of bread cost $1.29," you'll tell them, but they won't believe the price could have gone up from $1.29 to $10.00 or so in twenty short years. Well, kids, here's the proof; these are the honest-to-goodness prices of items in 1987.

A Bedford "SPIRIT" Test For YOU

How much do YOU actually know about Bedford High? Take this simple, short quiz and find out. It's easy; all YOU do is answer the questions, tally up your score, and see how YOU rate as a Bedford High School student. Have fun!

1. What is this year's yearbook theme?
a. Glory Days
b. Blue, White, and You
c. Catch the Wave

2. When going to a Bedford football game, what does a super-spirited Bedford student wear?
a. Blue & White
b. Nothing
c. Yellow and Green

3. If there were a Bedford football game during the day, YOU would
a. sit on the visitor's bleachers where it is warm
b. stay home and watch Gilligan's Island reruns
c. sit on the Bedford bleachers and cheer your team on to victory

4. During Spirit Week YOU
a. attend Concord High for the week

DON'T YOU BE PUSHED

"Stop the Madness", "Don't be pushed", "Just Say No", "Arrive Alive", "Don't Drink and Drive" ... There is no doubt that you have heard these catch phrases before.

In the past year, America has been bombarded by the media about saying no to drugs and alcohol, especially before driving. The big push is on this year to get everybody to stop all this madness of drug use, killing innocent people while driving drunk, and more.

Even the President and Mrs. Reagan have become involved in this drive towards a drug-free nation. Drinking laws are getting tougher and police and law officials are cracking down on use, hoping to get everyone to stop doing these things to themselves. Massachusetts drunk-driving laws have become tougher. Now, your license is revoked if you get caught driving while under the influence.

Television stars, singers, athletes, and other celebrities have gone on campaigns to get Americans to stop. Many stars, including the Celtics, have issued challenges to stop.

Not only are big-names getting involved, but so is the average citizen. Many high schools have S.A.D.D. programs to let high school students know of the trouble they will get into when they drink and drive. People are letting others know in every way possible that they care.

Before this public push, teenagers who said no to drugs or alcohol were looked down upon. People laughed at them. Now teenagers can just say no and be respected. America has seen the wasted lives of potential greats such as Len Bias.

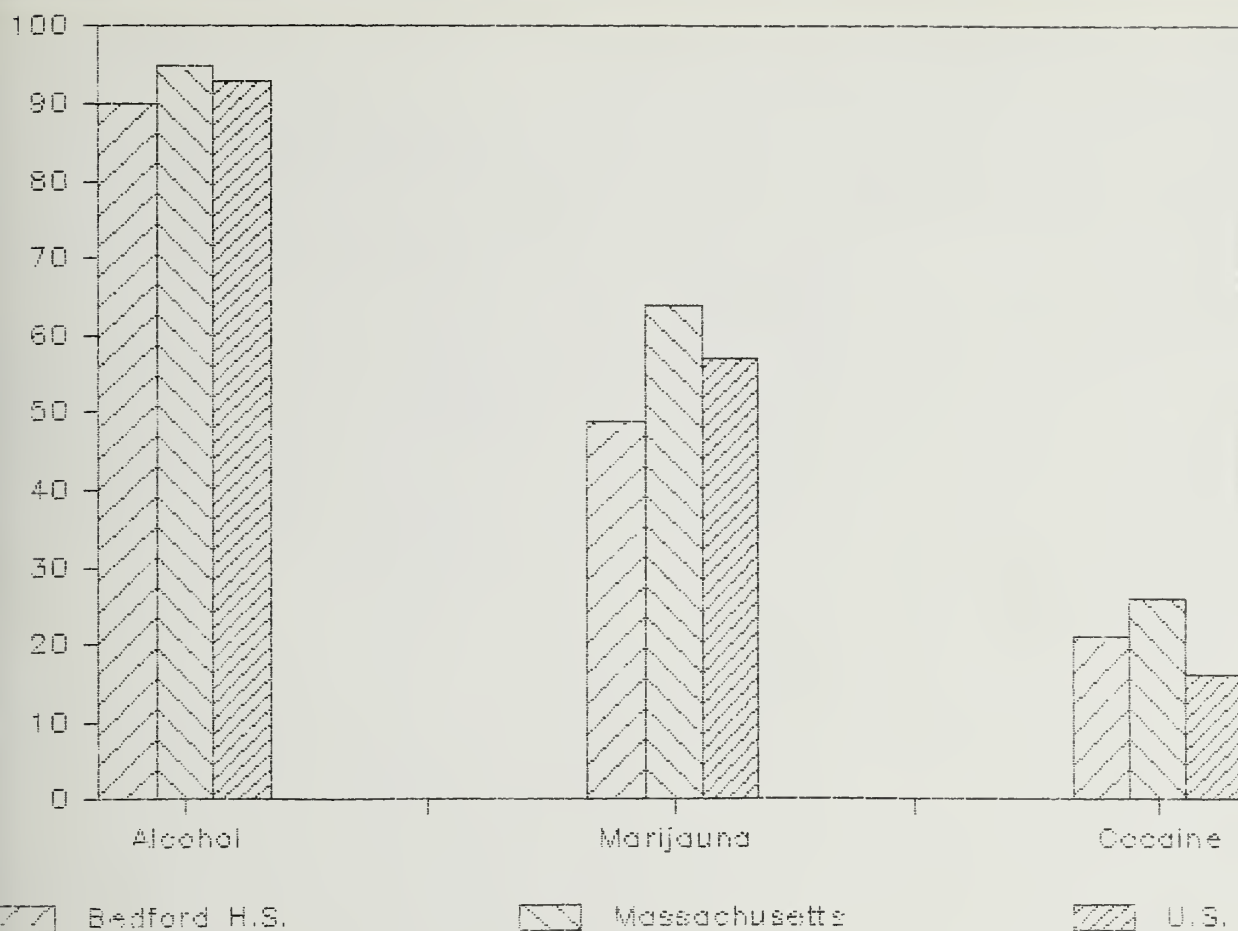

The new epidemic of drug problems sweeping the nation is "crack", a highly addictive and powerful form of free-based cocaine that is cheap and easy to get. There have been many news reports on all the major stations about the life of a crack user.

Through many warnings of the dangers of smoking cigarettes, the public began to cut down on its use of cigarettes. Hopefully with all the publicity of the dangers of drugs and alcohol, the public will cut down its use of them and someday we will have a drug-free nation.

Blue White And You

A survey taken in the fall at Bedford High School showed that slightly fewer Bedford students have ever tried alcohol or marijuana compared to their fellow students in Massachusetts or across the country. However a significant higher number of Massachusetts and Bedford students have tried cocaine at least once in their lives compared to their peers nationwide.

Think twice when a drunk driver offers to take you with him.

New And Improved

New lights were installed on the football field, enabling the Bucs to play night games.

The new school year brought about a number of changes to our school. The most obvious to both the town and the students was the new lighting system for the football field. The advent of our new lights ushered in the era of nighttime football games. Also, with the renovation of the athletic fields came the installation of a state-of-the-art track.

When the students at Bedford arrived at school on September 3rd, there were new things to be found. The floor outside of the old cafeteria had been re-tiled with blue tiles, and A-16 had been split in half to make a new room.

Other new additions to Bedford, besides physical ones, were teachers. Mrs. Troiano became a new addition to the Special Education Department, and Mr. Pavao was the new head of the Foreign Language Department. Mr. Pavao created a new interest in foreign languages by starting "Le Cercle Francais" which also led to the beginning of "El Club de Espanol". Ms. Badrigian replaced pregnant Mrs. Rainis in the French classroom. This year students were also greeted with a new Vice-Principal, Mrs. Donovan, who still teaches English in addition to her new administrative duties.

Bedford High School was always a great school, but thanks to these new additions, it has improved to be even better.

New staff members: Mr. Pavao, Mrs. Troiano, and Ms. Badrigian.

YEARBOOK- what an adventure! Thanks to all who helped the yearbook, but especially the consistent Yearbook Crew. Mrs. Troiano-thanks for taking on this job, not knowing what you were getting into. Your bubbly spirit and smile always kept us going, even when we were a week late for a deadline! Lisa-Thanks for sticking with us and being our assistant editor. You may be quiet, but you are lots of fun! Jill-I'm really glad that you became a yearbook copy editor! The stories in this book will be perfect thanks to your fine, gifted touch! You are an awesome person and I'm very glad we have become friends! Adrienne-I'm very happy

Adrienne Tsang

This year's staff may have been small, but it was a close-knit group which worked long and hard to produce a book that everyone could be proud of.

To all those who helped us typing, writing, or doing odds and ends - I thank you. To Jennifer, Adrienne, Jill, Lisa, and Mrs. Troiano - I appreciate not only your hard work, but also your friendship and support. Jennifer - I can't believe how much you have done for this yearbook. You did everything including keeping yearbook fun. Adrienne - You helped us with our work while still managing the business section on your own. It was tough, but the end that our friendship has continued to grow. Thank you so much for doing the business section, because none of us have any idea what to do with it. Carole-I think without you this yearbook would fall apart. You always know what's going on, where hidden things are, and what we have to do to meet the deadlines. I'm glad that we have become such good friends, and I appreciate all that you do.

Thanks to all for the juicy gossip, the fun and funny times we have had, and being your unique selves! I truly cherish the times we've had. I will miss you all very much. I wouldn't trade all this fun and tension for anything! -Love, Jennifer

The yearbook-an activity, a challenge, a huge headache, but it's still fun. Although I sometimes wish that I never got involved, I am really glad that I did. I have met some great people, and I have learned some things as well. I have realized that the yearbook is much like a business, and that it can be a very tense situation. Missing photos, late deadlines, unappreciating people, and totally wonderful staff members, that's what it's all about.

Mrs. Troiano-Thanks for putting up with us this year and being a great advisor. I really appreciate all that you have given up to help make this yearbook a reality. Lisa-I am really glad that you decided to result turned out perfect. Jill - You sacrificed a lot for this yearbook. But it paid off. Because of your blood, sweat, and tears, this yearbook has the greatest copy ever. Lisa - You were so much help. Whenever we needed you, you were there. We couldn't have done this without you. Mrs. Troiano - Your cheerfulness kept us going and your caring nature helped us through the tough times. You were a great advisor.

Once again, thanks to all who have made this such a great yearbook and have made this year so rewarding for me. -Love, Carole join us this year. You've been a great help to us all and I'm glad that we've become friends. Jill-The "best Literary Editor" that we could possibly have, what would we have done without you? I'm glad that we've become better friends this year. Jennifer-What a year! Our friendship has really grown throughout this year, and thanks for putting up with all of my complaining. Carole-You've been a great editor but most of all a great friend. You are someone who I can always count on and I wouldn't trade it for the world. Thanks to everyone on the staff for all of the good times. -Love, Adrienne.

Q: Where can Jill always be found? A: In the computer room editing stories.

Yearbook... There are so many different components that are needed to make a great one. First a hard-working staff, an energetic adviser, and a creative theme are needed to get the Yearbook rolling. After all of these resources are pooled together the fun begins.

The Bedford Yearbook Staff meets all of these requirements. The staff has been planning the 1987 Signum since last spring. They had many meetings to decide a theme, they went to many Yearbook workshops throughout the spring and summer to bring the students of Bedford the best possible book.

In the fall, the Yearbook staff really starts cooking. They have many deadlines to meet and work hard to get the pages out. When does the Yearbook get finished? It is like a three season sport and work on the actual yearbook lasts until February and on the supplement until May.

What is an average week at Yearbook like? During the week the staff works until five or six and until eight or nine on Fridays. The staff sometimes has to give up Saturdays and vacations to meet the deadlines.

What does one get from being on the Yearbook Staff? Well, besides Excedrin headaches and meeting great people, they get great satisfaction when they see hours and hours of work unfold from a book which is appreciated by hundreds. This great feeling is unexplainable.

Hard at work, Lisa Pignatiello and Carole Cooke layout pages.

Always editing, Jill Costello spices up another story.

"Photography is fun" exclaim Becky O'Donnell and Adrienne Tsang.

Yearbookers don't always work, sometimes they take a break to ponder creative thoughts. (Jennifer Koenig and Mrs. Troiano).

YEARBOOK STAFF

Becky O'Donnell, Karen Hill, Alice Spencer, Melissa Bueno, Kathy McGovern, Kathi McGovern, Elisabeth Colbath. Thanks to all those who typed and helped with other jobs that needed to be done.

WAITING STAFF

Kathy McGovern, Kathi McGovern, Darrell Hanson, C. Alice Spencer, Jen Sutton, Lisa Linz, Nathalie Weicker, Christi-Anne Castro, Linda Ricci, Greg Melville, Jackie Weicker, Bob Sullivan, Stephanie Mierzykowski, Megan Ralston, Elisabeth Colbath, Julie Brill, Neera Tanden, Laura Maxon, Jay Wallace, Kathy Doughty, Sharon Wachsler, Joanne McDonough, Erika McGilvray, Sharon Beardsley, Eric Larsen, Adam Erlich, Matt Huffman, Karl Hanf, Steve Donaldson, Todd Dworshak, Scott Udell, Juan Gutierrez, Sara Gutierrez, Irit Chosniak, Verena Unruh, Carolyn Matthews, Terry Poole, Tamar Kupiec, Rene Holtzman, Tom Welch, Meg Gurley, Mandy Telford, Patti Sciaraffa, Jim Larkin. Thank you all so much!

Clowning around, Lisa Pignatiello, Jennifer Koenig, Adrienne Tsang, Carole Cooke, Jill Costello and Mrs. Troiano take a well deserved break.

"Rip that paper, Carole!"

What kind of people are crazy enough to devote 15-25 hours a week to a project for which they get absolutely no credit? Complete loonies, that's who! What kind of personalities do yearbook members have, if any?

Carole Cooke is very quiet; she never screams or yells, but she will let you know if she can't stand what you're doing. She is very conscientious and never says a bad word about anyone. Carole frequently has "neat fits" - by the way Carole, have you seen my pencil? And we do know that you left your locker open on purpose the night before your birthday just so we could decorate it.

Our famed copy (literary) editor, Jill Costello, claims that "layouts are not her problem" (but does some anyway). Jill frequently has a coronary when someone doesn't turn in an article on time. Her "problem" comes from the computers in B-12 which she battles everyday. Requiring that each article meet some standards, Jill often gets frustrated; her favorite saying (other than "twit") is, "this person Has a cApiTaliZatlon prObLeM!"

Jennifer Koenig is the comic relief of the staff; she always seems to come up with some dumb joke. Creative at heart, Jen can "whip off" layouts in no time at all. Jen worships Tom Cruise as anyone who enters the yearbook office knows. The yearbook staff voted Jen "Miss Photogenic 1987" because no one else could compete with the 10,362 examples that Jen submitted to the contest.

The staff member with the longest and hardest-to-spell last name is Lisa Pignatiello. Another quiet person, Lisa consistently works on layouts even when everyone else is gossiping (not that she doesn't contribute to those conversations, we must say). Lisa has been known to come up with some, uh, humorous captions.

For the second year in a row, Adrienne Tsang was the business editor for the yearbook. Money is her "problem" and she "doesn't do computers". Occasionally, she can be found on the phone yelling at the "stupid photo place". Typing buy-a-lines is her favorite passtime, and she will greatly miss it next year (in fact, she is considering a career in buy-a-lines).

Our new advisor this year, newlywed Tracy Troiano, is certainly the happiest member on the staff, because she never stops smiling. She can handle tough situations and remain cool as a cucumber, and she always "agrees 100 percent." By using her initial inexperience as a yearbook advisor, Mrs. Troiano helped us through many tight deadlines by telling Jostens and Burlington Studios "I didn't know that; I'm new at this."

Now that you have met the yearbook staff, why don't you show them your appreciation? At $5.00 per hour, that would only be about $20,000 (no exaggeration). No, you say? Don't forget that we may have incriminating photos of you!

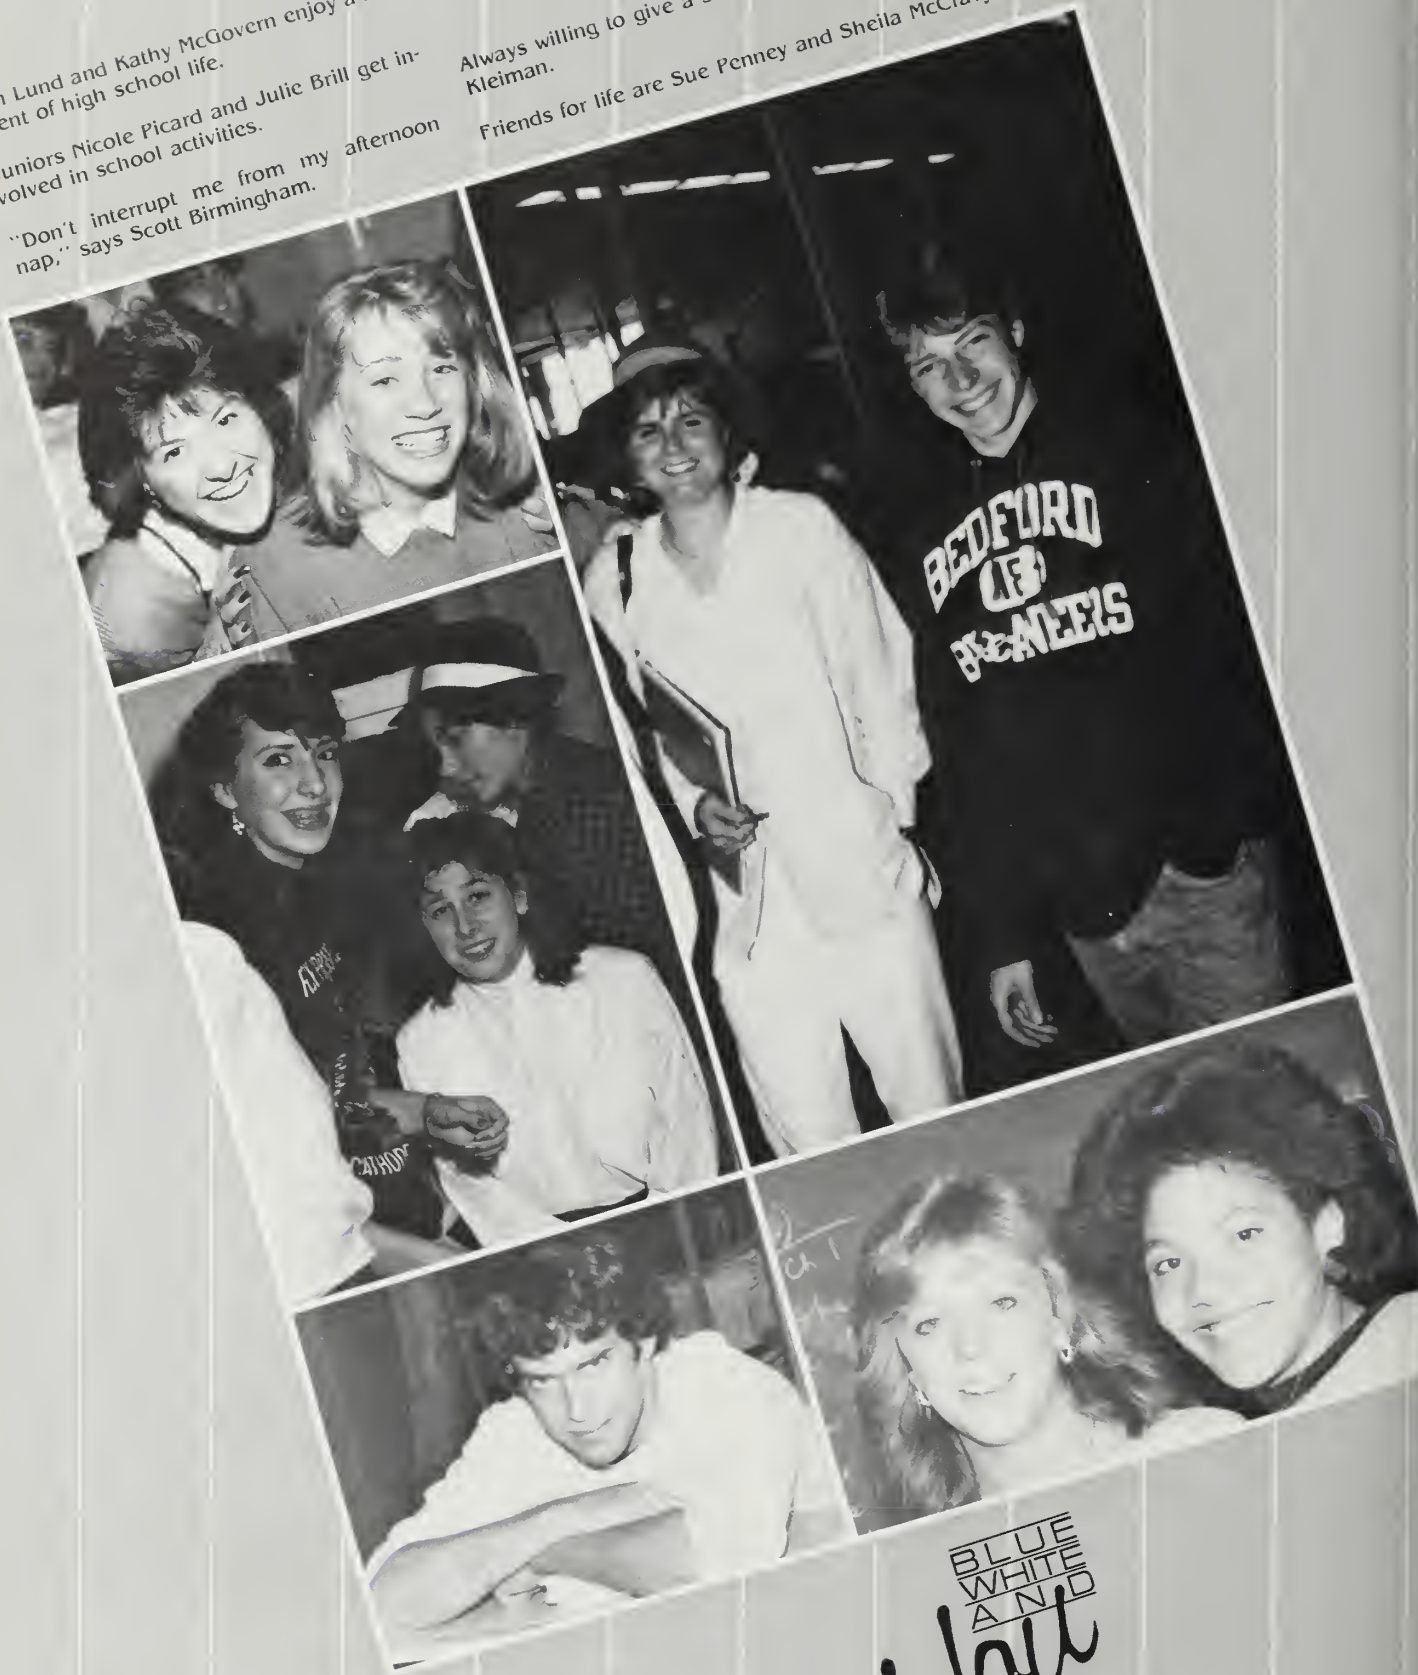

Jen Lund and Kathy McGovern enjoy a moment of high school life.

Juniors Nicole Picard and Julie Brill get involved in school activities.

"Don't interrupt me from my afternoon nap," says Scott Birmingham.

Always willing to give a smile are Mandy Telford and Gary Kleiman.

Friends for life are Sue Penney and Sheila McCravy.

To all the underclassmen, we wish you the best during the rest of your high school years.

Good Luck Seniors!!!

First Flight

Here we stand on the ledge waiting
All that we are
All that we could be
Inside
The lessons have been taught
But how much have we learned?
They all watch and wonder Breathless
So old we think
Too young they know
But it's time for them to Let Go
Here we stand
Wings out and unsure
They cross their fingers and whisper good luck
And lean forward to watch our

A Final Look

Gone for another ten weeks of summer vacation are the nasal droning of the fire alarms and the familiar smell of that something special being prepared in the cafeteria. Don't fret, underclassmen; when you return in the fall, things will be just as you remember them. For seniors, however, these experiences might get lost along with silent lunches and spelling bees in the vast land of oh-so-pleasant memories of yesteryear. Sigh.

As the 1986-87 academic year draws to a close, it is time to remember the events-happy, sad, exciting, or aggravating that made the year unique. The year that will be remembered for the "Iran-Contra Affair" was also the year when Mrs. Rainis had a baby boy, Jacobas (Jake). Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday became a national holiday, and the semi-formal was in January instead of Christmas. We had 44 inches of snow in January (as opposed to 8 inches average) yet no "snow days" off from school, and Miss Mintz became Mrs. Rull. The Red Sox were in the World Series and the BHS football team won more than two games. In the 100th Congress, the Democrats controlled both the House and the Senate; and Mr. Phinney and Mr. Smith took over the Drama club and created the first Student Production Night. AIDS continued to spread, making Americans aware of its dangers; and lights were installed on the football field.

Although we seniors may be losing the unforgettable sound of fire drills and the smell of school lunches, we will be tied together by those events that made our senior year special and unique. As we all go our separate ways in the future, the "Blue, White, and You" that is the spirit of Bedford High, will never leave us.

Well prepared Eric Finney waits for Physics class to begin.

The very spirited Becky O'Donnell and Suzy Asbedian show their enthusiasm on Blue and White Day.

Christine Green and Pervis Lanier take a moment to enjoy each other's company.

Friendship is very important to this trio consisting of Christina Hopkins, Julianne Durkin, and Linda Ricci.

Ski bunny Jennifer Koenig is ready to hit the slopes!

During IPS, Kristen Maddox works on her experiment.

Smiling Kristen Thompson, Jennifer Spencer, Kathy Reed, Kim Snelson, Sue Burns, and Anne Higham are stopped in the halls for a picture.
